THE PATMAN BILL To Be Vetoed?

Washington, May 13.
Over 20,000 telegrams favouring the Patman Bonus Bill, which if approved by the President would require the issuance of $2,000,000,000 in new money, awaited President Roosevelt when he returned to the Capitol to-day after a week-end's fishing.
Nevertheless, the President is expected to veto the Bill, already passed with substantial majorities by the House and Senate, when it reached him to-morrow.
Unless Congress can muster a two-thirds majority and over-ride the veto, the Patman Bill will be "killed." Reuter.

JAPANESE AIRMAN

Brussels, May 13.
Katsutaro Aono, the Japanese aviator who is attempting a record solo flight from England to Japan by a new route, including Hong Kong, has left here for Nuremberg.
Aono started out on Sunday from Heaton, flying a British Eagle plane, and landed the same day at Brussels, damaging the undercarriage of his machine in alighting. This caused him some delay in again taking off. Reuter.

"PICKABACK" PLANE

Trans-Atlantic Service

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 30.
Imperial Airways have placed with Short Bros. of Rochester, an order for the first "composite seaplane" to carry mails across the Atlantic to New York.

This composite craft consists of two four-engined monoplanes—a flying-boat with a seaplane on its back.

And this is how it will do its work, according to plans designed by Major R. H. Mayo.
At the take-off at the start of the journey the seaplane, locked to its "porter-plane," will be heavily-loaded with mails.
All eight engines will run full out to get the flying-boat off the water.

The "porter," carrying a very small amount of fuel, will use all its power to support the seaplane.

Then, when sufficient height and speed have been attained the seaplane will be released to carry on across the Atlantic, and the flying-boat will glide down to its base again.

The seaplane will carry enough fuel for a journey of more than 3,000 miles, and will take 10,000lb. of mail.

TAKE-OFF PROBLEM

The whole idea of the composite craft is to solve the problem of getting into the air a machine carrying a heavy load and sufficient fuel to take her over the 2,100 miles between the Azores and Bermuda, or the similar "hop" between Ireland and Newfoundland.

Major Mayo's plans provide for the seaplane being able to carry 10,000lb. of payload, even against a continuous 60 m.p.h. head wind for the 2,100 miles.

This is a most important and cautious provision, but the weight of fuel for it would total about 24,000lb.

It is extremely doubtful if any of the big flying boats which America and France have built, could carry 10,000lb. of payload by the same test.

The cost of the composite craft is estimated at about £100,000. The Air Ministry have contributed.

The new device has military value. One porter airplane could launch in succession every few minutes a number of upper components.

Each could be heavily loaded beyond its take-off capabilities to

NEW RECORD For World Gold Production

Basle, May 13.
Representatives of twenty-four banks of issue, or banking groups, attended the annual meeting of the Bank of International Settlement to-day.

The meeting approved the report and accounts and decided to transfer 1,957,000 francs to the General Reserve, and to devote a similar sum to the Governments of Belgium, the British Empire, France, Germany, Greece, Italy, Japan, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, and Yugoslavia, who are holders of long-term deposit accounts with the Bank.

The report mentioned that the world's gold production in 1934 totalled 2,904,000,000 Swiss francs, which was a new record, whilst the amount of gold hoarded for private account at present totals 77,000,000,000 Swiss francs.

The reduction in the amount of international short-term indebtedness of European countries and the United States during 1934 was between 2,000,000,000 and 3,000,000,000 Swiss francs.

America's Policy

Dealing with silver, the report states that it is unlikely that the metal will be generally used as an element in the monetary reserves of Central Banks. If there had been any general demand for silver internationally, as there is for gold, there would have been need for adoption of a similar policy by the United States to hold silver. The policy pursued by America may somewhat reduce the demand in the gold market, and may supplement the already high gold reserve cover for the purpose of internal expansion, but there is no evidence to justify the conclusion that such a policy will produce any fundamental change in the monetary position of silver from the international viewpoint. Reuter.

GERMAN AIR STRENGTH

British Outclassed

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 26.
The rapid expansion of German military aviation has created a situation which, I learn, is likely to necessitate radical changes in the British Government's latest Air Force expansion programme, writes a correspondent.

Facts which were brought to the attention of Ministers on the eve of the Stresa Three-Power Conference indicate that Germany has already established a commanding aerial supremacy over this country.

They show that the German Air Force is already equipped with practically double the number of first-line military aircraft available in this country at any given moment for purposes of home defence.

When Herr Hitler informed Sir John Simon in Berlin that Germany had already attained air parity with Britain, it was not appreciated—since no precise German figure was given—that he intended to convey parity with the total 1,020 first-line planes of the Royal Air Force in all parts of the Empire.

It was later learned that such was his intention and that the parity mentioned referred not to the 480 machines available for British home defence, but to the total 1,020.

The fact that the German Air Force is thus already established on a basis of a 2 to 1 superiority over the air forces of the United Kingdom has become the subject of earnest consideration by the Government since the Prime Minister's return from Stresa.

It gives it a big weight of bombs and exceptional range for a long distance raid.

London, May 13.
Replying to questions from Commander Arthur Marsden, Conservative, in the House of Commons to-day, Capt. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, said that the Government inquiry into the Tungchow piracy had been held in camera.

This secrecy was preserved for reasons connected with the taking of evidence, and the press and public are therefore excluded from the hearing. Reports of the inquiry are not in a form fit for publication at present, he added. Reuter.

To Accelerate Completion OF SINGAPORE'S DEFENCES

Singapore, May 4.
That, in thanksgiving for the blessing of His Majesty's reign and in commemoration of the Silver Jubilee, this Council approves a grant of £500,000 as a gift from His Highness the Sultan and the State of Johore to the Imperial Government for the purpose of accelerating the completion of the defences of Singapore was the text of a resolution passed at an emergency meeting of the State Council, Johore, yesterday.

Moving the resolution H.H. Tungku Mahkota said: My Royal father has now reigned for forty years and during his reign the financial position of the State has improved to a degree which gives him great satisfaction and pride.

In order to show his affection for His Gracious Majesty King George V. under whose protection this prosperity has been attained, his pleasure at having lived to see His Majesty's Silver Jubilee and his satisfaction at the prosperous condition of this his State, His Highness the Sultan desires to make a gift to the Imperial Government in thanksgiving for the blessings of His Majesty's reign and in commemoration of the Silver Jubilee.

As to the amount of the gift, His Highness desires that it would be of such magnitude as will cause the name of Johore to resound throughout the British Dominions and countries under British protection, and be of material assistance to the Imperial Government.

LARGE SURPLUS

This State has a large surplus due to the prosperity and good administration of His Majesty's reign and His Highness considers that the sum of £500,000 is commensurate with the occasion and well within the resources of the State.

The purpose for which the gift is to be offered is one of paramount importance to the whole Empire and of special importance to the protected State of Johore, the acceleration of the completion of the defences of Singapore.

Ungku President, in obedience to the wishes of my Royal father I have much pleasure in moving the resolution now before you.

H. H. Ungku Aziz, the Hon. Mentri Besar, seconding the resolution, said: It is with the greatest of pleasure that I rise to second His Highness Tungku Mahkota's resolution, which is before this Council to-day.

LONG-STANDING AFFECTION
The affection and friendship of Johore rulers towards Sovereigns of Great Britain is of long standing. It originated with the late Sultan Abu Bakar and Queen Victoria of gracious memory.

His Highness the Sultan has renewed the friendship by his several visits to England in recent years when Their Highnesses were graciously received by Their Majesties the King and Queen.

It is also of interest to mention here that His Majesty King George, when he was Duke of York, as a naval cadet, while visiting Malaya, was entertained by the late Sultan at the Istana Besar in 1879.

The sincere friendship of Johore with the British Government has been over a century old, and as in the past if ever there was an occasion needing help the rulers of Johore, past and present, have never hesitated to do all they could for maintaining the peace and integrity of the Empire.

EXAMPLE TO WHOLE EMPIRE
In seconding this resolution I am proud to be associated with the generous gift which His Highness the Sultan and the State of Johore are making and which, I am sure, will serve as an example to the whole Empire and as a vesture to any who would threaten its peace.

Supporting the resolution the Hon. Dato S. Q. Wong said: As the Senior Unofficial Member of this Council it is my privilege and honour to express the fullest and strongest support of all Unofficials to this resolution.

The prosperity of Johore has been entirely achieved and is being maintained to-day through the good government of His Highness the Sultan under the protection and assistance of the British Government and it is therefore most fitting that on this unique occasion of His Majesty King George's Silver Jubilee that she should show her loyalty and gratitude by making the proposed gift.

GIFT FULLY JUSTIFIED
Johore's estimated surplus of assets over liabilities at Jan. 1,

1935 was about $41,000,000, which sum includes the Opium Revenue Replacement Fund of $15,000,000. This surplus will in all-probability continue to increase from year to year.

The Unofficial Members are, therefore, quite satisfied that the very sound state of her finances fully justifies her making this munificent gift, and are glad to know that it is to be utilised for the purpose of accelerating the completion of the defence of Singapore on which the future security and prosperity of Johore depend so much.

His Highness the Sultan in initiating this gift has given convincing proof of his loyalty and friendship to the British Crown, and apart from his high statesmanship must be congratulated for having set a noble example to the other units of the British Empire.

Sir, on behalf of all Unofficials I wholeheartedly support this resolution.

SIR DAVID GALLOWAY
The Hon. Sir David Galloway was visibly moved when he spoke of the happy relations which existed between the Royalty of Great Britain and those of Johore. He said: I would like to associate myself heartily with the motion before the House—not from its political or financial side—but from that of the very long and close friendship between the Royalty of Great Britain and those of Johore.

This takes me back to 1895 when the late Sultan Abu Bakar lay adying in London. It reminds me of the very anxious inquiries made by Queen Victoria, with whom he was a very great favourite, through her Equerry several times daily, and of the Prince of Wales—later King Edward VII—who came several times daily and when His Highness Abu Bakar was well enough conversed with him.

But the most touching was the behaviour of the late Duke of Saxe

ANTA LIZANA

Reaches Final Again

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 26.
Senorita Anta Lizana, of Chile, reached the final of the Tally Ho lawn tennis tournament at Birmingham by defeating Miss K. Stammers 6-4, 8-1. She will meet Miss Mary Whitmarsh in the final.

Miss Stammers, who is ranked No. 3 in this country, had little reply for the South American girl's terrific forehand and backhand driving. Miss Stammers appeared to lack confidence, and she continually overhit the baseline.

After losing the first game in the first set, Senorita Lizana went to a 4-1 lead, and though Miss Stammers won 3 more games, the Senorita clinched the set at 6-4.

The second set was a rather one-sided affair, and Senorita Lizana won it with the concession of only one game.

Coburg who would sit for hours—his whole aspect, that of a man about to lose his dearest friend.

These are reminiscences but they show how close has been the relation of Great Britain with Johore, relations which I trust will long continue.

IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT

ACCEPT

The Hon. Ungku Abdul Hamid said: I also support the resolution and I take this opportunity of congratulating His Highness the Sultan on his foresight and His Highness Tungku Mahkota in moving this resolution, offering this gift as a token of appreciation to the British Government for helping towards the welfare and prosperity of the State of Johore.

The Hon. Mr. M. C. Hay, the Acting General Adviser, said that he was extremely pleased when he first heard of the intention of His Highness the Sultan to make this gift and he was proud to be a member of the Council passing that resolution.

THE LITTLE MINISTER

CHAPTER SIX

Barbara saw two of the biggest parishioners supporting the slight figure between them. When they stepped over the threshold, Gavin bade them put him down, and he stood on his feet, but his hands were pressed convulsively to his side, where the coat was torn and stained with a stain that widened steadily.

"Now then," he said, "You are here to accuse me, so out with it. There is no need to spare me."

His eyes swept the crowd and met Barbara's. He went on: "Tonight I was seen in the company of this lady, when I should have been at my church. I may have seemed to sin against you, but what has happened is not for you or any man to judge. All I have to say is, this is the woman of my choice. She is not what you think her, but if she were, it would not make the slightest difference to me. If she is unworthy of your reverence, then so am I. We belong to each other, and I am blessed. . . his eyes closed for a moment and he swayed unsteadily. "I am blessed more than I deserve in knowing she is mine. No mortal man shall part us."

Gavin would have fallen, but Lang Thammass caught him in his huge arms, lifted him and carried him to the sofa.

"Gavin my boy! God willna let anything happen to so good a man," his mother sobbed.

"You mustn't cry," he answered her softly. "Did . . . did you meet Babbie?"

"Aye, and she is lovely. Already we are friends."

Together the two women bent over him and Babbie whispered, "My dear one, if only I could bear this for you."

"Don't cry for me. The . . . pain . . . is not . . . so bad." But his lips scarcely moved and all color had gone from them.

"It's because of me," Babbie cried bitterly.

"Because of you, life has taken on a new meaning. If God takes me now, I shall have known love."

and great happiness." His eyes closed and Babbie made another effort to rouse him. "Darling, when shall we be married?"

He smiled at her: "I had hoped—tomorrow."

"The first day you recover then. In a week, perhaps. And Mr. Whamond and Mr. Spens will stand up for us, won't you?" Her eyes pleaded with the two men, the most influential Elders.

Lang Thammass resitated for a moment, but when Mr. Spens nudged him and said loudly, "Aye, and that gladly," Lang Thammass said "Aye" too.

"You won't mind being a poor minister's wife?" Gavin asked.

"I shall be proud. Darling, I'm not so helpless as you might think. You'll see."

"Here comes the doctor," cried Jean, and, thankfully, Barbara saw the good Dr. McQueen take charge efficiently.

Everyone was sent away but the Elders, who stayed with Mrs. Dishart and Babbie in the little study off the living-room where Gavin lay. Barbara moved apart by herself. She stood at the window and clasping her hands, raised her face.

"Please, God," she said humbly, "he is so good. He deserves your help. They need him here in Thrums. And I, I need him most of all."

She did not know that the Elders watched her and recognized a faith akin to their own. The last barrier was down. Gavin should have his bride, and the congregation would take her as one of them, if he lived.

Until the dawn, Gavin's life hung in the balance. Through that night of suspense and fear, Barbara and Mrs. Dishart drew so close together that a bond was forged, never to be broken. In the morning, when Dr. McQueen came to tell them that Gavin had definitely rallied, Barbara sent Mrs. Dishart in first. Barbara learned selfabnegation, as she had learned love.

Secure in her new-found safety, she was not even afraid of Lord

Rintoul, when he knocked at the door and asked for news of Gavin. was touched by this. It would have been so characteristic of the man to send a servant. When she tried to tell him how it had all come about, he said to her wonderingly, "Do you then, love him much, Babbie? Can you not have pity for me?"

"You are unhappy now," she said "don't love me, really."

"There is nothing in the world you can't have for the asking. You love beautiful things, expensive things. Can you be content here? I will give you anything in the world. If that isn't love, what is it?"

"You don't know what love is. I want to share my husband's cares, as I will expect him to share my husband's cares, as I will expect him to share mine."

"I scarcely know you, Babbie, you are so changed," Lord Rintoul sighed. Perhaps he had not loved her before. This new Babbie called forth from him emotions that were strange to him.

Mrs. Dishart came out from the inner room. "Babbie," she said, "he is asking for you."

"Goodbye," Barbara said to the nobleman, "You are right, I hardly know myself, but I think . . . Isn't love God's doing, and when a woman is in love, surely God has her by the hand?"

"Amen," said Mrs. Dishart quietly. "When we love, we are in God's keeping. Go, Barbara, but don't stay long. He is still weak, but to see you will give him strength. And God bless you, my daughter."

THE END

Allison Skipworth, featured in Paramount's Here Is My Heart, is considered the best bridge player in Hollywood.

Sylvia Sydney, star of Paramount's Behold My Wife, has the artist's conception of the ideal face.

BEHIND THE SCREEN IN HOLLYWOOD

It cannot be said that Darryl Zanuck, head of 20th Century pictures, is unaware of the meaning of the word "reader-interest." It is Mr. Zanuck's theory, apparently, that pictures, to be popular, must be based upon popular books or popular personages of history or literature. Of the six films either just finished or in production by Zanuck at the United Artists studios, five are developed around characters and stories that are known to millions through their reading of books.

"The Mighty Barnum," with Wallace Beery as its star, is the story of a man who has had no fewer than 36 books written about him. A total of 1,600,000 biographies of various sorts have been sold in the United States alone. The life of this famous American "father of show business" has been translated into fourteen foreign languages.

"Clive of India," in which Ronald Colman is star, is based on a play which recently completed a solid year's run in London representing one of the most successful ventures on the British stage. Fifty books have treated extensively of General Robert Clive, who was sent by the English to avenge the infamous crime of the Black Hole of Calcutta. There have also been numerous novels in which he has played an important role; these, in turn, have been translated into many languages.

"Cardinal Richelieu," in which George Arliss plays the title role, has a great literary heritage. Richelieu has been the subject of more than 100 biographies, and the central character in ten stage plays. It is estimated that more than 100 million persons have read about France's most famous statesman.

The fourth on the list of 20th Century productions is Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," which stars Fredric March and Charles Laughton. This famous work has been published in every modern language, and has had more than 1,000,000 new readers, each year for many years.

"The Call of the Wild," starring Clark Gable, is on the "required reading" list of virtually all the schools in America. The number of copies of this Jack London story sold in the United States alone is well over the million mark. With translations and foreign distribution, that figure is more than doubled.

Nevertheless, it is not only literature that finds its place on the 20th Century schedule, for there is "Folies Bergere" in which Maurice Chevalier is the bright, shining star. It is based on the Parisian musical show that has been the most famous one in the world for the past 50 years. It is estimated that more than ten million patrons have paid to see it during that time.

CALL OF THE WILD

The launching of the production of Jack London's "Call of the Wild" at the 20th Century Pictures studios was witnessed by the daughter of the famous writer, Joan London. Although she is a member of Hollywood's writing colony, Miss London had never before seen one of her father's works take shape before the cameras.

A fractured ankle that she had sustained a few days before her visit to the studio could not deter her. She was accompanied by her 13-year-old son, Park London Abbott.

A few weeks after Miss London's visit, the production, under the direction of William Wellman, with Clark Gable, Loretta Young, Jack Oakie and others in the large cast, was transferred to a "location" site in the Northwest section of the United States.

Realism was the object of the location trip, and realism is what Wellman and his associates found. They camped at a spot 12,000 feet up and eighty-five miles from the nearest city, to shoot outdoor scenes for this United Artists release. The company of 100, including players and technicians, was snowbound for a week by the worst blizzard to hit the territory in six years. Their food and medical supplies were exhausted when they were finally rescued by a relief expedition.

Lynne Overman, in Paramount's You Belong to Me, is a capable amateur artist.

Kathleen Howard, in W. C. Fields' starring picture It's A Gift, is an enthusiastic entomologist.

Gertrude Michael, in Paramount's Father Brown, Detective, ran a radio station when she was seventeen.

Elissa Landi, featured in Paramount's Enter Madame, speaks eleven languages.

GRETA GARBO TO-DAY'S RADIO PROGRAMME

And The Mazurka

Greta Garbo will dance the colorful "mazurka" in Anna Karenina.

Director Clarence Brown has selected Marguerite Wallmann, famous Viennese choreographer, to arrange and direct the spectacular dance sequence.

Brown proclaims Mme Wallmann as the greatest genius of the dance to-day. On his recent tour of Europe he saw several of her amazing "Dance Dramas" which she designed and produced. Although Mme Wallmann is under contract to the Vienna state Opera, he urged her to come to Hollywood to introduce her new and sensational ballet development in pictures.

The "mazurka" sequence in the immortal Tolstoy drama is planned as one of the most important episodes in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which David O. Selznick will produce.

During its tuneful, rhythmic progression, important dramatic events take place between the leading characters without any cessation in the music or dance steps of the participants.

Direction of the "Dance Drama" in the new Garbo picture will be Mme Wallmann's assignment for the films in Hollywood, where she was accompanied by her husband, Professor Hugo Burghauer, president of the Vienna Symphony, who conducts the music for her spectacles.

MAY ROBSON

In A Bob Sleigh

More than fifty years on stage and screen—and now May Robson has to learn to operate a sleigh—and down a hill!

But she's not a bit daunted. She says she'll do it—and do it better than any of the winter sport enthusiasts in the High Sierras, where she's going to do her speedy stunt before camera and microphone.

Miss Robson was given the amazing role of "Mother Shaw," eccentric millionaire who figures in a sensational court battle for the custody of a child, in The Age of Indiscretion which Edward Ludwig is directing for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Little David Jack Holt is the child. One of the big scenes in the picture show him and Miss Robson having a grand time in the snow, with the actress showing the boy how to operate a sleigh.

"Flush" In The Cast

The last time she rode a sleigh in the snow, Miss Robson admits was at St. Moritz, when she was a young girl. "But I can do it every bit as well to-day!" she stoutly insists.

The new picture, a drama centering on a sensational child custody lawsuit, is an original story for the screen by Leon Gordon. Phil Goldstone is producing, and the cast includes Madge Evans, Paul Lukas, Shirley Ross, Ralph Forbes, Helen Vinson, Beryl Mercer, and others—not forgetting Flush, the famous spaniel of The Barretts of Wimpole Street, who plays a big role in the new picture.

Flush, incidentally, will be Miss Robson's second passenger on the sleigh in her race down the hill.

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

RED MORNING

A seafaring adventuress who shares the perils of the tropical deep with the staunchest and bravest men is the heroine of "Red Morning," the thrill-film of love in the Antipodes showing locally for the first time at the King's Theatre.

Steffi Dana is the courageous protagonist. With Regis Toomey as her lover, she sails a course of dangerous adventure in equatorial waters in her father's schooner. When the treacherous first mate Hawker scuttles the Papua with its dummy cargo to claim insurance, the girl escapes in a dinghy to a tribal village where she is captured. She earns her freedom by saving the dying chief's son from snake-bite.

The heroine "Kara" locates her fiancé at a savage native island where he has been captured and tied to a tree. She effects a daring rescue of him.

The story action of "Red Morning" is set in the vivid and colourful locales of New Guinea and the Fiji Islands. James Shackelford and George Dromold travelled 25,000 miles in a special expedition, armed with four cameras and a complete RCA recording outfit. They spent more than ten months at these scenes living with savage headhunters among tropical perils, but were rewarded by beautiful scenic photography depicting native rituals heretofore unseen on the screen.

WHIRLPOOL

Jack Holt, virile action star, portrays the character of "Duke Sheldon," racketeer de luxe, in Columbia's "Whirlpool" having its final showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Supporting him in this moving drama are Jean Arthur, Donald Cook, Allen Jenkins, Lila Lee and Rita La Roy and the story smoothly unfolds and builds to a dramatic denouement with more than usual interest throughout. Holt is seen in the role of Rankin, a carnival owner who is sent to the penitentiary for twenty years. At the expiration of his sentence, he soon establishes himself as Sheldon in the underworld with the aid of his former henchman "Mac" who furnishes him with his thousand-and-one imaginary ailments, a role excellently played by Allen Jenkins. The discovery of his daughter as a newspaper reporter and his wife as the wife of a prominent judge greatly involves matters. An inescapable situation ensues when a shy lawyer unearths Sheldon's past and threatens the wife and daughter and the story speedily moves to a startling climax.

DEVIL DOGS OF THE AIR

The trappings of war in days when bright banners were borne aloft ahead of gorgeously uniformed troops, when military bands marched into action and shining buttons flashed in the sun, were colourful and glamorous. The "Boys in Blue" was a living phrase of a literal application among American fighters till modern efficiency, just before the world war, voted to discard the Army blues in favour of the more business-like olive drab or khaki.

But the United States Marine Corps, always the most colourful branch of the Service insofar as uniforms are concerned, never gave up its dress uniform. On parade and on ordinary dress occasion in camp, the "Devil Dogs" are still holding the last trench of the poetic "Boys in Blue."

This is beautifully illustrated in the Cosmopolitan Production "Devil Dogs of the Air" directed by Lloyd Bacon and featuring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, which Warner Bros. will present on Saturday at the Alhambra Theatre.

James Cagney, as the harrumscrum youth with plenty of supreme egotism and no respect for authority, cracks the story wide open as the photoplay opens by literally breaking up a Marine Corps brigade review.

The review is that the "Flying Marines" stationed at the Marine Base in San Diego Harbour. And, clicking to varieties, the screen review is staged in "dress blues," the correct modern uniform for such occasions in the still picturesque Corps which embraces an important section of air fighters as well as "soldiers of the sea."

LITTLE MINISTER

Katharine Hepburn is now starred in the most colourful production of her remarkable career, "The Little Minister," which is RKO-Radio's picturization of Sir James Barrie's immortal story, coming to the King's Theatre on Saturday.

It was necessary to construct an entire Scotch village, the town of Thrums or Kirriemuir, the modern name for the town. A reproduction of the village in its entirety rests quietly in the shadows of the California Hills, a work of art on the part of experts on Scottish architecture and landscape, who worked with the studio scenic experts.

The picture gives many views of the exquisitely intimate village of Thrums. Barrie's birthplace, it is shown in contrast with the famous Rintoul Castle, which was built after the style of the old Norman castles, with high ceilings, leaded glass windows and huge stone stairways.

Against this background Katharine Hepburn's greatest starring vehicle, Barrie's "The Little Minister," recreates the quaint charm and events in the village of Thrums, with all the moving romance of which Barrie alone is capable and which Miss Hepburn so ably interprets with her inexhaustible resource of power.

John Beal portrays the Little Minister, and Alan Hale plays Rob Dow. Richard Wallace directed.

MIDNIGHT ALIBI

After holding the title of one of America's foremost sports authorities for a quarter of a century, Damon Runyon began to display his versatility a few years ago by creating a series of short stories, dealing with present day New York and its night life that are classics of their kind.

Such vivid cross-sections of twentieth century Manhattan and its motley millions have these Runyon yarns proved to be that several of them have found their way to the screen, a recent one being "A Lady for a Day."

Foremost among his more recent tales of the metropolis is "Midnight Alibi," which First National Studios, produced, and which comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-day with Richard Barthelmess in the stellar role.

No story Damon Runyon has written more completely reveals his singular ability to weave a story pattern in which the most discordant and dissimilar elements mingle to form an amazing dramatic whole.

DOROTHY ROUND DROPS OUT

"I Can't Go On"—After Winning Set.

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 30.

Puzzled spectators watched Miss Dorothy Round, the Wimbledon singles champion, walk to the umpire's chair immediately after winning her first set in the Tally Ho lawn tennis tournament at Birmingham.

"I am sorry," she said, "I can't go on, my leg is hurting."

Later she explained that she had strained a leg while playing at the Melbury tournament in London last week.

Her opponent was Mrs. I. H. Wheatcroft, who lost the set by 3-6.

Senorita Anita Lizana, the diminutive South American girl reached the semi-final round of the singles.

In the first set of her match against Miss M. Slaney she slipped and badly cut both knees. Play was held up while the wounds were bathed.

PREVIEW

The Captain Hates The Sea

"The Captain Hates The Sea," sounds somewhat unusual but as it is only a title of a film, perhaps the expression loses some of its strangeness. Anyway, that is the title of one of the best pictures Victor McLaglen has appeared in for many a long day and when it is mentioned that he has such players as Allison Skipworth, Wynne Gibson, John Gilbert, Walter Connolly and Claude Gillegwater in the supporting cast, cinema fans may form some idea what first class entertainment will be provided them when the picture has its initial showings at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday.

The story concerns a somewhat adventurous voyage from San Pedro to New York for aboard the San Capador are a large number of interesting people. There is a journalist, a playful and rich widow, a "Woman with a past" and a private detective and together they give us entertainment of a high order.

McLaglen takes the part of a private detective and very cleverly he adds humour to the more serious side of his work too. In the picture we also see John Gilbert, a favourite of the silent films who shows that he is just as good in the "talkies," and Walter Connolly as the Captain acted his part well.

Preceding the feature film are two very interesting "shorts" Screen Snapshot and a colour cartoon entitled "Happy Land."

CLOUDS TO ORDER

Very little is left to Nature in Hollywood, and clouds made to order is its latest achievement.

Cecil B. DeMille had urgent need for clouds when he was taking a shot of a muezzin calling the faithful to prayer for a scene in his new Paramount spectacle—The Crusades, which features Henry Wilcoxon, Loretta Young, Ian Keith and C. Aubrey Smith. But no clouds hung in the sky.

Just before the scene was taken, a sky-writing airplane started to scrawl a slogan. DeMille watched it with a glinting eye.

By the time the cameras started to turn, when the plane was out of range, the disintegrated smoke letters drifted solemnly across the background behind the muezzin, relieving the monotony of the vast expanse of sky.

DeMille had got what he wanted!

MOVIE NEWS

HAIR-RAISING FOR BING

Who says sentiment is dying out in these hectic times? Bing Crosby, star of Paramount's Mississippi, has just let out the secret that if he were to comply with every request he receives for a lock of his hair, he would have to get a prison hair-cut every week.

Bing had to let his hair grow for Mississippi, in which he is supported by W. C. Fields, Joan Bennett, and Queenie Smith, and as soon as his admirers got to hear of it, they started writing in their hundreds.

"The only place these locks are going when they come off," said Bing, "is on the barber's floor."

NEW BED FOR MAE

Trust Mae West to think of something new. The star of "Go to Town" has designed a new kind of bed which will be shown in this Paramount Picture.

It is circular, situated in the middle of the room, has its pillows in the centre and is surrounded by draped curtains.

It is carried out in lavender and the room is decorated in the same shade.

PARAMOUNT'S MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY

Paramount have purchased all rights to the story of Victory Herbert's life, together with rights to nearly 500 of his musical compositions.

This will be regarded as one of the most important films of the year and practically all of Paramount's singing stars will be in the cast.

These, as tentatively announced, include Gladys Swarthout, Helen Jepson, Mary Ellis, Bing Crosby, Kitty Carlisle, Joe Morrison, and Jan Kiepura. No director is yet assigned.

GEORGE RAFT FOR ENGLAND?

George Raft will celebrate the completion of his new Paramount picture—"The Glass Key"—with a trip to Europe, provided that studio schedules will permit him to be absent from Hollywood for that length of time.

He originally planned a trip to New York but decided that if he's going that far, he might as well go a little farther and re-visit France and England.

KING IN GARTER ROBES

Portrait For Royal Academy

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 28.
A new full-length portrait of the King, wearing the Garter robes, will be one of the features of the Jubilee Royal Academy, which opens on May 6.

It has been painted by Sir Arthur Cope, the 77-year-old artist, who is famous for a long series of fine portraits of kings, princes, and other celebrities, most of whom have played a big part in world affairs during the King's reign.

This is not the first portrait of the King which Sir Arthur has painted, and others among his sitters have been King Edward VII, the Prince of Wales, the ex-Kaiser, Lord Kitchener, the Lord Chief Justice, and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Great Sportsman
Sir Arthur has been a great sportsman excelling at fencing and shooting. Only last year he resigned his position as Commodore of the Solent Yacht Club, Isle of Wight.

R.A.s and A.R.s were at the Academy yesterday "touching up" and varnishing their pictures. To-day and to-morrow also will be varnishing days for them.

HOSPITAL CONSTRUCTED

More than £50,000 worth of medical and surgical equipment was hired for use in "Walter Wanger's" psychological love drama—Private Worlds, starring Claudette Colbert as a doctor in a psychopathic hospital. The story is based on Phyllis Bottome's sensational novel, and was made for Paramount.

The hospital setting built to house the equipment, contained 17 rooms completely fitted for X-ray work, laboratory tests, anatomical specimens and operations. The set occupied 2,150 feet of floor space.

The supporting cast includes Charles Boyer, Joan Bennett, Helen Vinson and Joel McCrea, under the direction of Gregory La Cava.

The Sceptic

The little girl looked up from her book.

"Mummy," she said, "do all fairy stories begin with 'Once upon a time'?"

"No, dear," was the reply, "some of them begin 'I've been detained at the office.'"

R.A.F. FLIGHTS

Programme Of Long Journeys

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 30.

Six long-distance flights, in addition to those already announced, will be made by R.A.F. units towards the end of this year. They are all intended to afford training in navigation and maintenance away from bases and to prove the ability of units to undertake rapid reinforcement moves. These aspects will be especially pronounced in this year's flights, heavy transport aircraft being used in several cases to carry spare equipment, baggage, and stores.

Among these flights will be two by flying-boats. In October a squadron of flying-boats from Malta will fly to Aden and back, a distance of about 6,000 miles. These machines will probably be the new Supermarine Scapa boats. At about the same time of the year the Short Rangoon flying-boats stationed at Basra will make the return journey to Aden. Most of the other flights will be made by general-purpose aircraft, the type which designed to undertake most of the military duties which may be laid upon an aeroplane.

One such squadron, accompanied by a troop-carrier, will make the journey from Egypt to the North-West Frontier and back, a total distance of 7,000 miles. The flight of general-purpose aircraft at Aden will make its way to Baghdad by the Arabian coast and will return through Palestine and Egypt. The round trip in this case is a distance of 4,500 miles. The journey will be made in the opposite direction at the same time by a flight of machines from Iraq. The longest journey will be undertaken by a general-purpose squadron accompanied by a troop-carrier, as they transport to Singapore and back a distance of 10,000 miles.

RIVER BOAT BRAWL

"We find that the deceased died as a result of a blood clot being detached from the tumour which eventually reached the heart through the lungs and that there is no evidence to show that this was caused by the fight. Our verdict therefore is death by misadventure."

This was verdict returned by the jury at the conclusion of enquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of a Chinese male named Mo, who died as a result of a fight on board the s.s. Taishan on May 4.

Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones, sat as coroner and was assisted by the following jury: Messrs. H. A. Figueiredo, Ho Tai Yung and Mo Pun Wal.

Mr. M. K. Lo, watched the enquiry on behalf of seven men detained by the police and Mr. C. Y. Kwan for Ho Man Chung, Mr. T. Murphy C.D. watched the proceedings on behalf of the Police. Ho Man Chung, a 23 year old hawker on board the s.s. Taishan stated that he was on the upper deck at about 6 p.m. when he was asked by Tong Xiu, to see the purser. He went up and eventually together with some other folks were paraded before the Captain for identification purposes. He saw no fight and did not know what the trouble was all about.

Weeping pitifully, Chan Yuk Ying, the 28 year old widow of the deceased gave evidence to the effect that she had been married to the deceased for the last six years. The wound on the leg had been there for the last six or seven years but it had healed completely. It was caused by a bullet received on the battle field while her husband was in the war.

After this his Worship addressed the people in the Court room and said that if there was any one in Court who had been an eye witness to the fight or who knew anything about it, let him come up and tell the Court what he knew. There being no response his Worship summed up and after Mr. Lo and Mr. Kwan had made their submissions the jury returned the above verdict.

SEQUEL TO FIGHT ON WHARF

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday, four men were charged with disorderly conduct at Kowloon Godown Wharf on Monday morning. Two other defendants, Wong Wong, 32, foreman, and Hung Yau, 22, coolie are at present in hospital.

The defendants in Court were Chan Tong, 29, foreman, Chan Wo, 25, Ng Hop, 53 and Ng Sing, 24. It was stated by Inspector Blimson that one of the injured men was in the Kowloon Hospital and the other at the Government Civil Hospital. The "former institution had only one prisoner's ward. The fight arose over the loading of some cargo, which the Godown coolies were going to remove from Holt's Wharf to the Kowloon Godown. Pieces of wood were used in the affray.

The defendants were remanded for 48 hours in police custody.

It was stated that one of the injured men, would not be out of hospital for a week.

JAPANESE MASTER FINED

Captain M. Nakamura, master of the s.s. Fukujin Maru, appeared before the Hon. Comdr. G. F. Hote at the Marine Court yesterday morning, charged with failing to cause his ship to be marked with Deck and Load Lines in the Victoria Harbour last Monday afternoon.

Mr. T. B. Low, Boarding Officer of the Harbour Department, prosecuted.

The accused pleaded not guilty and stated that he knew his ship ought to be marked with Deck and Load Lines. He also stated that he had asked some officials of the Harbour Department in Formosa to make the necessary arrangements for his ship, but they told him that if it had to be done, his ship would have to go to dock for several weeks. Therefore, instead of doing so, he set sail to Hong Kong with a cargo of pigs.

His Worship, however, did not believe the accused's story, and after hearing corroborative evidence given by another Boarding Officer, Mr. A. G. Cooke, imposed a fine of $250 or in default three months' hard labour.

ASSAULTING A WARDER

Lai Fat, 54, Fung Tai, 54, and Tsang Wai, 22, all labourers, were convicted by Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct. The first two were also additionally charged with assaulting two Indian warders at Castle Peak Road on the night of May 8.

The sentences were: a fine of $75 or one month's hard labour on the first defendant, $55 or three weeks' hard labour on the second and $30 or three weeks on the third.

The defendants alleged that they were struck by several Indians while Chief Warder G. L. Buchanan stated that as far as he knew this was the first time that such an attack had happened and that he was unable to find out why. The most probable cause was the stone throwing of the previous night.

GIVING FALSE PARTICULARS

For unlawfully giving untrue particulars when taking out a clearance at the Shaukiwan Harbour Master's Station last Wednesday, three Chinese stevedores named Wong Chi (28) of Trading Jung No. T2800H, Wong Him (29) of No. T2522H and Wong Hop (33) of No. T2335H were each fined $100 or in default two months' hard labour.

A STIFF FINE

Ngan Yuen, a 41-year-old mason, was yesterday fined $250 or in default five months' hard labour by Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham at Central Magistrate's Court when he appeared on a charge of the theft of a purse, containing $2.11 from the person of Li To on the Canton Wharf yesterday.

Mr. C. E. Lowe of Messrs. Dennys and Co. appeared for the defendant.

Li To said that about 8 p.m. on Monday he was in company of a lady friend whom he was seeing off to Canton. He had on his left shoulder a basket of fruit. When at the gate defendant approached him and covering his hand with an umbrella he was carrying, extracted his purse from his pocket. Complainant immediately caught hold of the accused's hand which still contained the purse, and shouted in Chinese "Snatch thief!"

A hawker assisted in arresting the defendant, who was handed over to a constable who was near by.

Corroborative evidence was given by the hawker, after which defendant was convicted.

PARTNERSHIP DISPUTE

The trial of an issue arising out of the bankruptcy of the Tung Tak firm was continued before the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor, at the Supreme Court yesterday, when the cross-examination was conducted of Lin Sang, connected with the Tung Lok, one of a number of other firms involved.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., is instructed by Mr. F. K. D'Almada, snr., for Arthur Brothers, petitioning creditors, and Mr. D. McNeill is instructed by Mr. F. H. Loseby of Russ and Co., for the Tung Lok, Tung Fook, Tung Woo and Tung Chan firms who contest the allegation of petitioning creditors that they are partners of the Tung Tak.

Lin Sang, in cross-examination by Mr. Jenkin, said he was managing partner of the Tung Lok firm, his contribution to its capital being $500. He was unable to point to this item in the books, and the explanation he gave to counsel was that it was in the nature of a personal contribution.

Explaining his connection with the Tung Fook firm, witness said his position with this other concern was that of assistant salesman.

When the Tung Lok business was started, he severed his connections with the Tung Fook, and devoted his whole time to the Tung Lok.

SALARY ADMISSION

He told counsel he did not get more than the $221 as salary for a lunar year, of 13 months from the Tung Lok; but later admitted that he received other sums for his services. These additional sums, as shown in the books produced, were $40, $40, $70 and $50. "Mr. Jenkin, I put it to you from your books that you were nothing more than a paid servant of some-

THOSE TWINS

Give Pleasant Surprise

Hong Kong business men in the Central District have just been the honorees of a novel surprise party given by the famous twins, Oval and Tine, known the world over as the "Ovaltine" Twins.

At the eleventh and inevitable hour in the morning when all the world is engulfed in a wave of weariness, when small irritations become major annoyances, two beautiful Chinese girls dressed in novel costumes appeared, before the "dread business men" of Hong Kong like visiting angels, presenting them with a sample of the world's most energizing food beverage and pick-me-up—"Ovaltine"—guaranteed to banish that mid-morning fatigue!

These lovely Chinese maidens were gowned alike in costumes of blue with the well known Ovaltine Characters in Chinese embroidered on unique pockets in orange colour.

With simplicity and charm, the "Ovaltine" Twins summoned an office boy in each building to bring them a cup, three parts filled with hot water, to which they added three teaspoonfuls of "Ovaltine" and a little cold milk—a dash of sugar for those with a sweet tooth. Thus, with swift, deft fingers and contagious smiles, these young ladies miraculously rid the business section of Hong Kong of that let-down feeling which threatens daily to destroy efficiency between eleven o'clock and tiffin time.

Hot or Cold
For those who may not be familiar with this magic beverage, let us add that there are 40 to 50 cups of "Ovaltine" in a large tin (costing from 3 to 4 cents each), and only the most highly nutritive ingredients—fresh eggs, fresh extract of malt and fresh milk, all grown and produced in England, are to be found in "Ovaltine"—manufactured by a scientific process and acclaimed the world over to be the best tonic food beverage for maintaining health and strength.

Equally delicious cold as hot, "Ovaltine" makes luscious Ice Cream too. Every store in Hong Kong keeps a generous supply of "Ovaltine" and the daily drinking of this great food beverage is definitely becoming the popular habit in this city and the world over.

body; and that somebody was the Tung Tak firm?

Witness: That is not true.

Witness agreed that when he started business with the Tung Lok, the Tung Tak had supplied him with leather goods to the value of over $7,000.

Counsel: I put it to you that you were supplied with these goods for the purpose of selling over the counter, and that you handed the proceeds to the Tung Tak Co?

Witness replied that these proceeds were payments for the $7,000 worth of goods he secured from them. He showed what he claimed to be receipts for these payments in the books.

The case was adjourned.

A fine of $2,000, with the alternative of 12 months' hard labour, was imposed upon Chan Yee, aged 58, a married woman, when she appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistrate's Court yesterday and pleaded guilty to a charge of having possession of 6,000 heroin pills at the Yaumati ferry wharf on Monday. Inspector Smith stated that defendant had the pills concealed round her waist in a specially made waist band. In all, 12 packets containing 500 pills each were found. Defendant alleged that she was given the pills to carry to Yaumati. She was to have been paid fifty cents for doing so.

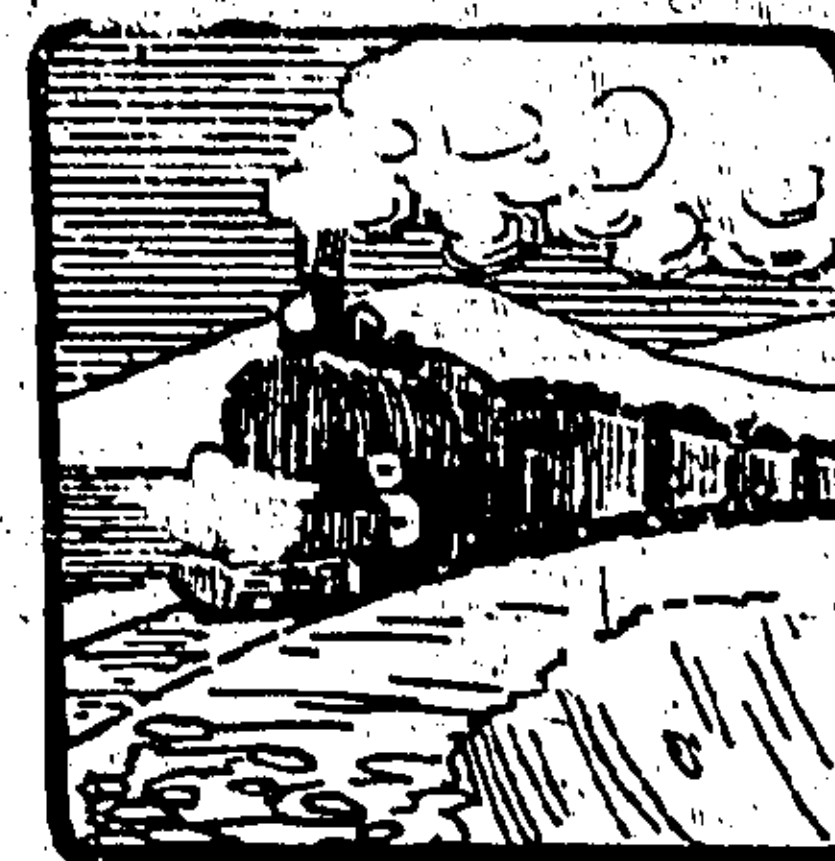

"I came back to Hong Kong to see the Jubilee festivities," remarked Chan Fok who pleaded guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday to returning before his term of banishment had expired. Defendant, who had a previous conviction for being the keeper of a brothel last summer, was sentenced to nine months' hard labour.

The possession of 250 counterfeit Hong Kong ten-cent pieces was the charge preferred against Li Fook when he appeared before Mr. Grantham at the Central Magistrate's Court yesterday. Defendant was arrested coming off a Canton wharf. He stated that a friend of his asked him to carry the coins to Hong Kong. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

THE WORLD AND HER NEW DEALS

Interesting Talk By Prof. R. Robertson

The speaker at the weekly tiffin of the Rotary Club held at the Hotel Royal yesterday was Professor R. Robertson, of the Hong Kong University, who gave an interesting talk on "New Deals."

In the course of his address, the speaker referred to the efforts made by various nations to restore economy, and touched briefly on some aspects of what one might call the therapeutics of economic depression.

Mr. M. K. Lo presided and there was a large gathering present including the following guests: Dr. V. Goloubew, of Hanol, Mr. D.B.T. Hendry, of Batavia, Mr. F. R. Smith, of Shanghai, Mr. H. Martin, Mr. J. L. Litton, Mr. B. C. Randall, Mr. Chau Man Chi and Mr. Ma Man Fai.

PROFESSOR ROBERTSON
Addressing the Gathering Professor Robertson said:—

When President Roosevelt delivered his inaugural address on assuming office he said "This nation asks for action, and action now," and proceeded to describe his task in striking terms. "I assume unhesitatingly the leadership of this great army of our people, dedicated to a disciplined attack upon our common troubles." The keywords are action and discipline. These two are in varying degree common to all the plans and controls which nations have, in their need, permitted to be imposed upon them. Action must, however, in complex matters be accompanied by or rather preceded by thought. Discipline cannot exist for its own sake but only for the sake of an end. It is not certain that the need for action has always afforded sufficient time for thought. It is further not certain that the ends for which discipline in these emergencies is imposed have always been visualised.

Much Scouring
There is apt to be much scouring about on the part of those whose business it is to see to such things, when a nation feels constrained to organise itself for recovery. They may sometimes be so fully occupied in dashing here and there (metaphorically speaking) to this part of the economic system and to the other that there is really no time to think, and certainly no time to get together and think in an organized fashion. Brains trusts may not always be cohesive, as American experience has shown, although Australia is a notable example the other way. One American critic of the President in a recent article with the disrespectful title "New deal or old Mahogany" ends up with a pathetic cry "Oh dear, wouldn't it be pleasant if only we could have quiet just for a little while? then perhaps someone could think. Surely there are people left in this country who can think? Or aren't there?"

It is not my intention to inflict upon you any profound thinking on these weighty matters. But I should like to touch briefly on some aspects of what one might call the therapeutics of economic depression.

In the first place, nations have resolved to pursue largely independent courses of action in their endeavours to restore their economy. This was not surprising in a world sick to death of international conferences. Yet it is true that, providing we escape war, some degree of international agreement will be necessary in the future if recovery is to be satisfactory. Only let it not be a single comprehensive effort. World Economic Conferences have in the past attacked too heavy a programme. As the single nations, in their new deals, have in general proceeded piecemeal rather than by means of an entire consolidated plan, so our only hope for a recovery of international economics lies in a gradual and progressive application of agreed remedies. The first and earliest international need will be to get some certainty and stability and confidence in the monetary system.

Russian An Example
Nations, I say, have proceeded independently for the most part in their new deals, apart from certain group arrangements such as that produced at Ottawa. This was inevitable, for a new deal means greater centralised control, some degree at least of planning, and therefore can only exist where there is power to enforce it. Hence the prevailing emphasis on Autarky.

There is, of course, one great example of complete planning, Russia. This vast enterprise was not like our new deals in America, the British countries, and elsewhere, devised to restore industry and trade from depression; it was much more than that. It constituted the deliberate adoption on doctrinaire grounds of a socialist planned economy. There are those in other countries, also who would look for salvation to this and to this alone. Those who are obsessed with the belief that Capitalism as it has existed in previous generations contains within itself the seeds of disorder, find the explanation mainly in the fact that this Capitalism is unplanned. From this cause issue, they claim, overproduction, the trade cycle, booms and depressions. These constitute in their view too high a price to be paid for their achievements of Capitalism. Poverty in a world of plenty even though it may appear only at intervals, they hold, a challenge to our common sense. Therefore, they say, scrap the un-

FAREWELL TO HIS EXCELLENCY AND LADY PEEL

Hong Kong Pays Homage To Friend
And Counsellor

Help And Co-operation Appreciated

In disposition Your Excellency is kindly and considerate; great is your learning and profound your knowledge; above all, you have preferred resolute action to empty words. We remember that when you were transferred here in the summer of 1930 many problems awaited decision, and a multitude of reforms were wanted. By your great ability these were met without difficulty, and all questions, great and small, were settled as with a stroke of the sword; whereas the Colony was at peace and no calamities arose. SIR HENRY POLLOCK

The following was the address presented to His Excellency the Governor by the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock:—

To His Excellency Sir William Peel, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Knight Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Hong Kong and its Dependencies and Vice-Admiral of the same.

Sir—The Residents of Hong Kong very much regret that Your Excellency is not completing your full term of Office in this Colony in which you have done so much good work.

Upon your arrival here as Governor in May, 1930, it was pointed out in our address of welcome, that Hong Kong was then faced with many and varied problems.

During the period of your administration most of these problems have either been fully solved or have been placed in a fair way towards solution.

We shall not attempt to recount in detail all the schemes for the improvement of the Colony, which will be associated with your regime. We can only in this farewell address mention the more important ones.

(1)—In regard to Water, the most important undertaking by far is the starting and the vigorous prosecution by you of the Shing Mun Dam scheme, which will be completed in about two years from now and will add more than 3,000 million gallons to the reservoir capacity of this Colony. Other reservoirs completed or constructed in your time are the Aberdeen, North Point, Public Gardens and Jardine's look-out reservoirs on this side of the Harbour, and, on the other side, the Shek Lai Pui, Kowloon bye-wash and Yau-mat Hill reservoirs. In addition a second and larger pipe-line has been laid across the Harbour, thus facilitating the transfer of water from the mainland to the Island.

(2)—In connection with the Harbour, the establishment of the Vehicular Ferry Service has been made possible by the construction of Government Piers, on both sides of the water. Constant dredging is also proceeding in the Harbour.

TOWN PLANNING

(3)—Another important public work completed and equipped during your term is the Kai Tak Aerodrome, which we hope will shortly be the means of linking up this Colony by air with China, Europe and the United States.

(4)—In Town Planning, your name will be honourably associated with the vast scheme, which has already begun, under which new Government Offices and a new Government House will be built. This project will release valuable building sites for future development, and, as part of the scheme, a new and much shorter motor-road to the Peak, via Magazine Gap, has been made. We have also to thank you for the progress recently made with the important arterial road from Causeway Bay to Ming Yuen and for the extension of Chatham and other roads in Kowloon.

(5)—In the New Territories motor roads have been much improved, and projected waterworks schemes will benefit the farmers and residents. A start is also being made with public lighting.

(6)—As regards Hospitals and Clinics, your regime has been a notable one, being marked by considerable extensions to the Kowloon Hospital, by the starting of the new Government Civil Hospital at Pokfulam, and by the additions to the Tung Wah Eastern and Kwong Wah Hospitals and the partial rebuilding of the old Tung Wah Hospital. Clinics have been established, and anti-malarial measures been adopted in many parts of the Colony.

(7)—Broadcasting has been greatly developed in recent years, with a new wireless station at Kowloon, from which both Chinese and British programmes have been sent out.

(8)—Education, including practical technical education, has, at all times met with your active support. During your term of office, the annual Government grant to the University has been increased from $50,000 to $350,000, whilst land grants and financial assistance have been given to a number of schools.

(9)—As regards Prisons, a new Gaol for women has been built at Lai-chikok, and a commencement made on the new Gaol at Stanley.

(10)—Charitable Institutions have always received your warm support, and we would note:—

I—The establishment of Infant Welfare Centres;

II—The setting aside of land for Children's Playgrounds;

III—The grant of land for the recently opened Industrial School at Aberdeen, which will perform an important function in teaching trades to the poor children of the Colony;

IV—The grant of land in Tai Hang to the St. John's Ambulance Brigade for its Headquarters;

V—The permission to use the former St. Peter's Church, at West Point, for the accommodation of Street Sleepers; and

VI—Your cordial support of the Society for the Protection of Children, in aid of which you have sanctioned a fund being raised in your name.

IMPORTANT MEASURES

(11)—During your time here an exceptional number of important Legislative Measures have been passed, which incidentally bear witness to the industry of the Attorney-General.

For instance numerous amending and consolidating Ordinances have been passed, which are here set out not in the order of their importance but in the sequence in which they appear in the Volumes of Ordinances. The enactments in question deal with the District Watch Force, the Tung Wah Hospital, the Census, Bankruptcy, Intoxicating Liquors, Tobacco, Estate Duty, Industrial and Reformatory Schools, Opium, Penalties, Factories and Workshops, Dangerous Drugs, the Police Force, Prisons, Companies, Summary Offences, Magistrates, Arms and Ammunition, the Full Court, the Volunteer Defence Corps, Miscellaneous Licences, Trustees, the Registration of Births and Deaths, and the Adulteration of Food and Drugs.

Other noteworthy subjects which have been legislated for are the Registration of Nurses, the creation of Juvenile Offenders Courts, the regulation of the employment of Young Persons at sea, the conferring on the Supreme Court of Jurisdiction in Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, and in Criminal Appeals and the facilitating of Appeals from the Magistracy to Supreme Court, the creation of the Fund for the Assistance of Members of the Mercantile Marine, the Ordinance for the establishment of Naval Volunteers, the Registration of Persons and the Immigration and Passport Ordinances, and the Dollar Loan Ordinance, 1934.

LONG LIFE AND PROSPERITY

Amongst important recent legislation, special mention should be made of the group of Ordinances which, following on the Wellington Report, create the Urban Council instead of the Sanitary Board, and divide up the old Ordinance 1 of 1903 and the by-laws thereunder amongst various new Ordinances, which deal respectively with Buildings, Sanitation Food and Quarantine, and the Prevention of Disease amongst human beings and amongst animals.

(12)—We cannot close this record of Your Excellency's administrative achievements without expressing our warm appreciation of your invariable courtesy and patience in listening to the various representations and suggestions which have been laid before you, from time to time, on behalf of different sections of the Community.

We also desire to convey thanks of the Colony to Lady Peel for the warm and sympathetic interest which she has shown in social movements tending to the public good, and we specially appreciate her work in connection with Infant Welfare Centres and in starting and encouraging the raising of funds for the erection and maintenance of the Cheero Y.M.C.A., which has proved such a boon to the Naval and Military Services.

To her and to you we wish long life and prosperity and many happy years of retirement in the Homeland.

Sir Henry Pollock then presented to His Excellency the address which was beautifully designed in a blue case bearing on the front-piece the Colony Arms and the following inscription: "Farewell Address to His Excellency Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., Governor of Hong Kong."

THE CHINESE ADDRESS

On behalf of the Chinese Community, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall presented the following farewell address to His Excellency:

We have heard that of old those who excelled in the art of government were they who attended to what was difficult but who also took thought for what was easy; for by attention to the difficult, man's failures are reduced, and by thought for the easy, man's successes are multiplied. It is by a proper knowledge of what to put first and what to put last that a man approaches to first principles. And so it is with Your Excellency.

In disposition Your Excellency is kindly and considerate; great is your learning and profound your knowledge; above all, you have preferred resolute action to empty words. We remember that when you were transferred here from Malaya in the summer of 1930 many problems awaited decision, and a multitude of reforms were wanted. By your great ability these were met without difficulty, and all questions, great and small, were settled as with a stroke of the sword; whereas the Colony was at peace and no calamities arose. But for Your Excellency this could not have been accomplished. For this first will your memory live.

Your Excellency took thought for the Colony's water troubles. Should there ever be a lack of supply the people must suffer from drought, and you could not but be anxious for this. You spared no effort, but resolutely set yourself to provide the remedy. Reservoirs were built in succession in the Central District, North Point, Stanley, Shing Mun, Kowloon Tong and Jardine Hill as a result of your energy. The greatest of the Reservoirs at Shing Mun has a vast capacity, and there are yet two years more of work to be done there. Whenever we drink the water and think of whence it comes, how can we forget Your Excellency? For this also will your memory live.

To lead men to obey the laws must first depend upon the promotion of good conduct, and good conduct must in turn depend upon education. Your Excellency was well aware of this, and did all that was possible to encourage education and the training of citizens. Schools and Colleges which were hampered for ground or for funds received your support, and the University and Technical Schools received frequent subsidy. Hence it is that in Hong Kong education is liberal and well-ordered, and that men of talent have increased; which could not have been attained but for Your Excellency's efforts. For this also will your memory live.

Since Your Excellency was appointed to be our Governor the promotion of public works has never been neglected. By the building of great roads and wharves, and by the planning of the new Government House and of the Aerodrome your energy is made manifest. In ancient times when Sir Tai Ting opened the New Canal the merchants and travellers were all grateful for his beneficence; and when Wong Tso built the Cliff Way the people all sang his merits. Of Your Excellency it may well be said that you have deserved the praise of both of these. For this also will your memory live.

In the past five years very much has been accomplished in works of charity, notably in the erection of the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital, the reconstruction of the Tung Wah Hospital, the erection of the Aberdeen Industrial School, the establishment of the Infant Welfare Centre and the work of the Society for the Protection of Children. Extensions have been made to the Kowloon Hospital, and the new Civil Hospital has been begun on the Pokfulam Road. Public Dispensaries have been increased, and steps have been taken to combat malaria. The St. John Ambulance Association has been given a site at Tai Hang for its Headquarters. In all of these Your Excellency has either taken the lead or given active support, from which it has been made manifest that you both planned benefits for the people and led the way in charity. Mencius has said: "When a man is benevolent, righteous, faithful and trustworthy, and is not weary in well-doing, his will win an honour from Heaven." Thus beyond the honours bestowed by man Your Excellency has received an honour from Heaven. For this also will your memory live.

As to men's counsels, Your Excellency has ever been ready to listen, so that you well know the condition of all citizens. When you meet us Chinese we have ever been dealt with sincerely and received courteously. When any matter is possible you have given your encouragement and guidance; when any matter is impossible you have patiently explained your reasons, and so dispelled any doubts. Your clemency has been as the Spring, and your kindly disposition as a gentle valley. There is no one who does love you and claim you as a dear friend. A sage of old has said: "The proper way of government depends inwardly on the man and only outwardly on the constitution." To-day the Colony's Government would not have been kept in its proper path without your control and authority.

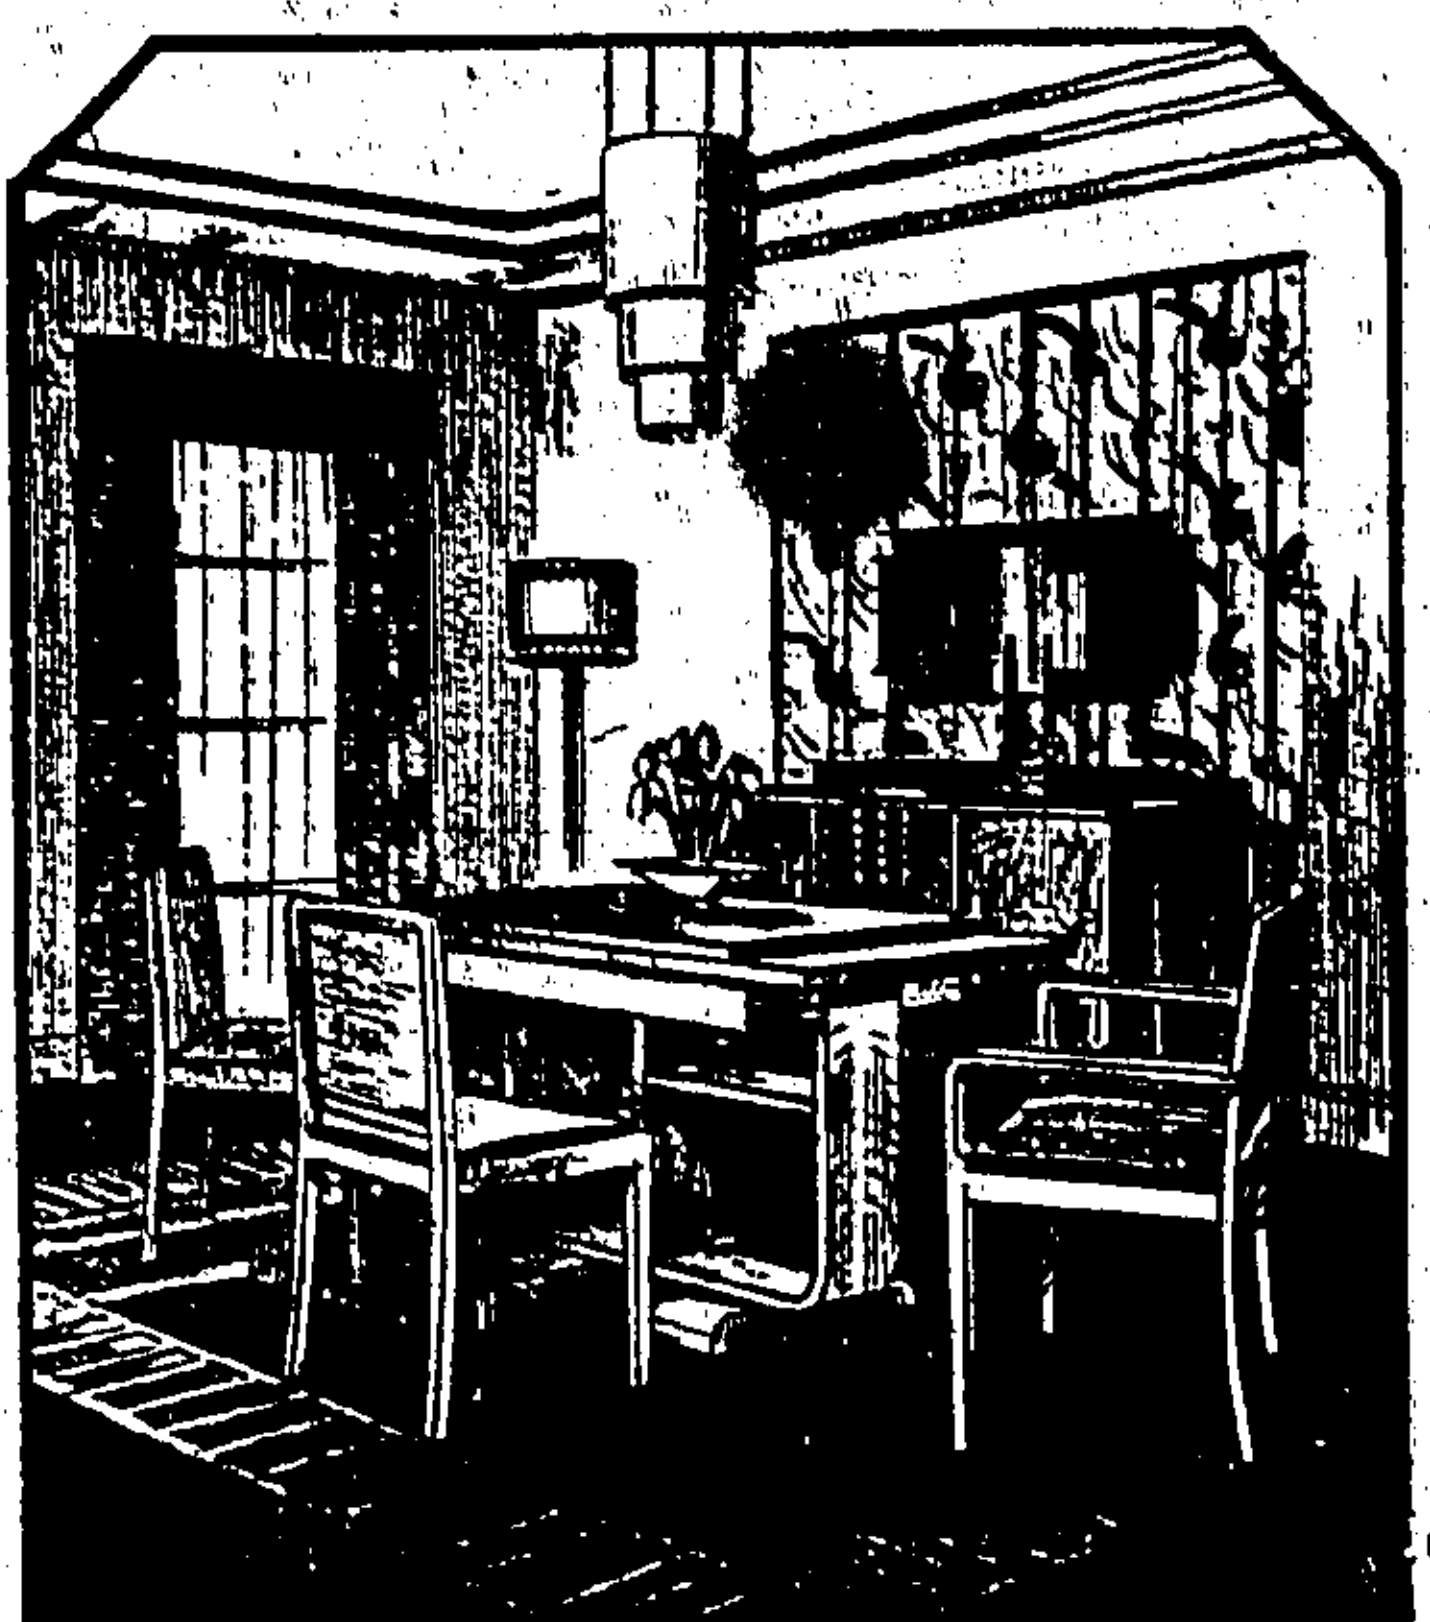

And now Your Excellency has reached the age of using a staff in your village, and will retire to your native land. In this China and Europe both agree, that it is a glory for a man after attaining power and great honour to return to his own country. We pray that your retirement will be enjoyed to a great age, and that your happiness will be unbounded. In the words of the Ode: "Happy is the true gentleman. May all blessings be his!"

Hong Kong, May 14, 1935.

In conclusion, Hon. Dr. Kotewall said: Now I have the honour, on behalf of the Chinese community, to ask you to accept the address which is inscribed on the screen and to accept this English version thereof.

LORD PRIVY SEAL EDEN

Returns To Duties

London, May 13. Mr. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, who has completely recovered from his recent illness which followed upon his severe buffeting in a flight home from Prague, has returned to his duties in the Foreign Office. He will lead the British Delegation at next week's League Council meeting at Geneva. He was accorded a warm welcome this afternoon on entering the House of Commons where he answered several questions addressed to the Foreign Secretary. One of these questions invited a statement on the position of the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia. Mr. Eden in his reply recalled that the matter was on the agenda of the League of Nations Council meeting called for May 20th.

Meanwhile, the whole situation was receiving the Government's most careful attention.—

MORE PARKING SPACES

Proposal By L.C.C.

London, May 13. Among the proposals of the London County Council Advisory Committee on street developments is one for providing parking places for motor vehicles under many of the open spaces to be found in London. It is outpointed that in the year 1932/33 there were 56,408 legal proceedings issued against vehicle users of which about 5,000 were in respect of obstructions and nuisance. There is no physical impossibility, the report says, in providing underground accommodation beneath the whole of certain squares without impairing the existing amenities.

HONG KONG, MAY 15, 1935.

TO PLAN OR NOT TO PLAN

It has long since been accepted that the days of Manchester laissez-faire have departed for good, not only in Great Britain but in all countries. Whatever the complexion of the Government, its interference in every phase of trade and industry has come to stay though there is quite naturally a great divergence of opinion as to the manner and the extent of the interference that is desirable. This division manifests itself not only between the political parties but also within them. Not so long ago, for instance, there was a debate in the House of Commons on industrial planning, and the chief protagonists for and against were to be found in the ranks of the Conservatives though the general principle of private enterprise was not contested by either section of this Party. What was at issue, however, was the method by which private enterprise could be made to operate most effectively in the interests of the public. On the one side were those who urged the grant of statutory powers of self-government to the several industries. Producing units would retain their separate individuality, but minorities would be subject to the coercion of the majorities in the formulation of policy. In addition each industry would conduct its sales through a single organisation which would be established solely for that purpose.

Against this weighty system of planned capitalism, however, the other side advanced weighty considerations and they contended that the dictation of prices of a statutory monopoly would not make either for cheapness or for efficiency and that there were no checks or controls which could satisfactorily replace the challenge of free competition. Added to this, would not the minority of adventurous spirits to whom the industry owed its progress be liable to suppression by the mediocre majority?

To put the matter in a nutshell, statutory monopolies would combine all the disadvantages of Socialism with none of the advantages of private enterprise. Mr. Runciman picked out a cautious middle course between the two schools of thought, claiming that the present and preceding Governments had in certain instances (namely iron and steel) already anticipated, in part, the proposals of the "planners." As he also pointed out, many industries had succeeded in organising themselves voluntarily without Government assistance.

DR. KUNG'S FINANCIAL REPORT

Chinese Press Comment

Shanghai, May 14. The leading Chinese newspapers devote editorials to Dr. H. H. Kung's financial report, particularly the nine points of his future programme.

The "China Times" says: "The disease has now been given the right medicine." It sees the nation's finances gradually ascending on the right path towards recovery.

The "Shun Pao" states that the report shows Dr. Kung's fighting spirit during the last two years, adding that "the report cannot be looked upon as an ordinary political report."

The "Central China Daily News" urges the Government immediately to carry out the programme. The "Min Pao" says the possibilities of the people in co-operating with the Government are now greater than ever before.

MOURNING IN POLAND

Death Viewed With Utmost Calm

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 13, 4.30 p.m.)

Warsaw, May 14. After the first dramatic hours following Pilsudski's death the country and the people are now settling down to details and activities programmed for the next few days. Mourning banners are fluttering from all public buildings, private dwellings, theatres and cinemas are closed, the radio sending only mournful funeral music or reports of events at the capital in connection with the great statesman's death.

In front of the Belvedere Palace, where Pilsudski's mortal remains are now lying in state, four generals are standing at rigid attention, while Pilsudski's wife and two daughters stand nearby. Here as well as in the country people flocked to churches and offered prayers for the deceased statesman and for the future of the country. In Catholic Churches special masses are being sung, the solemn splendour contrasting with the simple dresses of the poor peasants who formed a great portion of the congregations.

Since Cracow is intimately connected with Pilsudski's life, the final resting place will be the Palace of the Kings there, though his heart will be buried near the grave of his mother. Behind the sorrow which is manifest everywhere it is realised that Poland has become so strong that she is able to survive any storm ahead, the Constitution being pointed out as giving the President very wide powers.

The situation created by Pilsudski's death is viewed in political circles with the utmost calm, no crisis of any kind being expected.

CHINESE EGG IMPORTS INTO BRITAIN

London, May 13. Replying to questions from Mr. Patrick Hannon in the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Geoffrey Shakespeare, Parliamentary Secretary of Health, said he was unaware of any investigation being made into the food qualities of imported Chinese eggs.

He was advised, he said, that putrefaction did not occur as soon as the eggs ceased to be frozen. The only inquiry which the Department had had in hand was into the matter of bacteriological content of the eggs.

Mr. Hannon declared that he was positive that Chinese eggs were produced in repulsive conditions and urged that the importation should cease.

Mr. John Lawson, Labour, suggested that Chinese hens had a very much lower standard of living than those in Britain. "The House laughed and applauded."

Mr. Shakespeare declared that the content of an egg was not affected by what a hen ate. In response to further questions from Mr. Hannon, Mr. Shakespeare said the resolution of the National Poultry Council conference at Southampton of April 30, condemning the importation of Chinese eggs, did not appear to have been received by the Ministry of Health or of Agriculture.

CHINA VERSION

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)
Shanghai, May 9. Eggs have always formed an important part of China's exports. According to Customs Statistics, China's egg exports in 1930 were valued at $97,700,000. Following the increase of the import duties in America and England in 1931, the exports dropped to $56,800,000, and in 1932 a further drop to $44,300,000 was registered. In 1933 the export figures were further reduced to $38,400,000 and in 1934 to $30,200,000. Thus within the past five years China's egg exports have dropped 60%.

This has seriously affected the egg export business in this country, causing an annual loss of about $10,000,000. Last year only 34,000 tons of eggs were exported and three of the largest firms suffered considerable losses. The demand is further weakened by certain false reports published in England and America that some "experts" have found Chinese eggs to contain more bacteria than the eggs produced in their own countries.

GROUNDLESS REPORTS

However, official pathologists of the Ministry of Health, England, after extensive examinations of samples of Chinese liquid eggs, have reported that they are of a satisfactory standard of cleanliness and purity and that, as delivered frozen in England, they are within the bacterial standard demanded by Grade "A" milk.

It may be pointed out in this connection that Chinese eggs for export have always been approved by the Ministry of Industry Commodities Testing Bureau and examined under strict regulations. Eggs found not to standard are never shipped abroad, so that the malicious reports are absolutely without foundation.—

POST GRADUATE MEDICAL SCHOOL

London, May 13.

The visit of Their Majesties the King and Queen to Hammersmith this morning to open the British Post Graduate Medical School was made another happy Jubilee occasion. Their Majesties who travelled in a closed motor car were cordially cheered by the crowds all the way from Buckingham Palace.

The new medical school which has been founded through the co-operation of the Treasury and London County Council is in the University of London. It appoints its own staff, the clinical members of which will be full-time servants of the university and not dependent for their livelihood on private or consulting practice. Each of the four departments—medicine, surgery, obstetrics and pathology—has at its head a professor with readers and assistants, and the School will offer facilities for medical men from this country and overseas to put themselves abreast of the latest developments.

The King expressed the earnest hope that the School with its happy union of ward and laboratory with the University and the local authorities, drawing students and teachers alike from all parts of Empire, might prosper. "May it play an imperial role in winning and the dissemination of medical knowledge in relief of suffering among my peoples in this country and overseas and in enabling the doctors of all lands to come together in a task where all must be allies and helpers," said His Majesty.—

UNITED IN THE CAUSE OF PEACE

Laval-Litvinoff Statements

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 14, 4.30 p.m.)

Moscow, May 14.
During the dinner given in Laval's honour by the Foreign Commissar, Litvinoff, the latter stressed the added importance gained by the French statesman's visit through the fact that it immediately followed the conclusion of the Franco-Russian pact which was thus confirmed.

Pointing out that the pact negotiations have been conducted by three French Foreign Ministers belonging to three different cabinets, Litvinoff declared this to be a proof that the pact idea had the approval of all classes of the French people. The pact's first characteristic, said the Foreign Commissar, is that its authors were animated by the desire that the necessity might never arise for its application, and secondly that it is not directed against anyone nor excluded anyone from joining it who really is interested in the realisation of peace.

M. Laval replied as follows: "We have created an instrument of peace as you said and this best characterises the pact. Two great States voluntarily combined their efforts not only to safeguard their own security but also to serve the general cause of peace. Our countries' ideals may not be identical but they are united by a strong link of love for peace."

In conclusion, the French Foreign Minister warned the audience that responsible statesmen must show patience and persistence as the road to the so urgently needed rapprochement of all peoples is long and difficult.

The Question Of Stabilisation

Washington, May 14.
Mr. Morgenthau's frank statement came as a surprise in financial circles. Some observers interpreted it as bringing the issue of stabilisation openly before Great Britain as it indicated Mr. Morgenthau as a fully authorized spokesman for the Administration since it was understood that he went over the speech carefully with President Roosevelt earlier. Senator Smell, Republican leader, a caustic critic of the "New Deal," declared that the United States should stabilise now and added: "Evidently the President has changed his mind. According to the President, he would not consider stabilisation until the 1926 price levels are reached. President Roosevelt's statement to Congress in January showed the prices then averaged 74.8 on the 1926 level."

ITALIAN-ABYSSINIAN SITUATION

Anglo-French Intervention Reports Denied

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 14, 4.30 p.m.)

Rome, May 14.

The assertions of the British Press that the French and British Governments propose making a joint demarche to Rome with the object of expressing their misgivings at the latest development in the Italian-Abyssinian situation and recommending a speedy arbitration are emphatically denied by the semi-official Giornale d'Italia. The inspired organ expresses the belief that the two friendly nations have not the least intention of taking such a step which is not only interference with Italy's right to protect her menaced interests but also likely to produce opposite results to those intended. Diplomatic action would only encourage Abyssinia in her resistance with the consequence that her attitude to Italy would grow still more hostile. The situation would then become intolerable for Italy who was maintaining an attitude of calm and restraint but also of determination to protect her national rights.
Transocean Kuo Min.

ITALY READY

Rome, May 13.

The Italian Government has informed Abyssinia that it has chosen the two Italian representatives for the Conciliation Commission, and thus obviously invites Abyssinia to name its delegates, so that an immediate effort may be made to settle the frontier disputes which have arisen between the two nations and have threatened to bring them to grips. Abyssinia has long been seeking intervention by the League of Nations in this dispute with Italy, but has mobilised its fighting forces in the event of hostilities becoming unavoidable. The Ethiopian soldiery is massed on the frontiers of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, facing 100,000 Italian troops.

Il Giornale d'Italia, which invariably speaks for the Government, sharply criticises the alleged partiality of a section of the British press towards Abyssinia.

This journal declares that any European intervention in the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia which may result in encouraging Abyssinia against Italy, cannot diminish Italy's strength in defence of her national rights.

The paper adds belligerently that despite her military engagements in Africa, Italy is in a position to face any eventuality in Europe should the work of conciliation and collaboration between her and Abyssinia, upon which her hopes of peaceful settlement are pinned, fail.

FRANCO-ITALIAN CONVENTION
Meanwhile, in Rome, the Franco-Italian Air Convention was signed to-day by the French Air Minister, General Denain, and Signor Mussolini.

It provides for the establishment of airlines, including a Rome to Paris schedule, and also a link between Tunisia and Tripoli, which may be extended to the Italian and French colonies in North-east Africa after an agreement has been reached with the Egyptian Government. This Franco-Italian pact is generally considered as indicative of a close Franco-Italian understanding which goes beyond the field of economics.

SLIPPING BACK

Policies That Caused The War

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 30.

The opinion that war is neither imminent nor inevitable was expressed by Mr. Arthur Henderson as a League of Nations Union meeting at Scarborough last night. The nations were, however, now confronted with an acute peace crisis, and a stage fraught with grave possibilities had been reached.

"Unhappily, Europe and other parts of the world have been showing signs of slipping back to the very policies which resulted in the world catastrophe of 1914," said Mr. Henderson. "The vital question is, how can these dangerous tendencies be checked and an atmosphere making for a stable peace be restored?"

Far East Responsible
Events in the Far East have been largely responsible for starting the new armaments race. Nor must be overlooked the failure to act in time of the promise implicit in the peace treaties to seek equality of rights for Germany by a general reduction and limitation of armaments on the basis of a strong collective defence system.

"That is in the past, but to-day, as a result of that lamentable past, there are two storm centres in the world—one in the Far East and the other in Europe."

Peace, added Mr. Henderson, was indivisible, and any attempt to divide the responsibility for keeping peace was an invitation to disown the covenant and to open the door for war in Europe.

If there was a war in Europe, it would not be a one-way war, and it would most certainly engulf Britain. That was why we had an overwhelming interest in the success of the attempt to solve the equality of rights for Germany within the framework of a system of general security.

Must Go On

For the same reason Germany's return to the League and her full acceptance of all the obligations of the covenant was everywhere regarded as an indispensable feature of any real settlement. Our country must contribute

THE LITTLE ENTENTE

Conclusions At Conference

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 14, 7.30 p.m.)

Bucharest, May 14.

An official report on the result of the Balkan conference whose deliberations terminated on Monday stresses that the Balkan Entente welcomes with satisfaction the conclusion of the Franco-Russian pact which sees the basis for the future organisation of security in East Europe. The Balkan Entente, moreover, is willing to co-operate in the realisation of the proposed Danubian settlement provided due account is taken of the legitimate interests of the Balkan States.

The report deals at length with the questions of closer economic co-operation between the Balkan States, recommending intensification of commercial relations, the development of communications and the stimulation of tourist traffic.

No decision is as yet taken concerning the proposed creation of a Central Balkan Bank. The draft statutes of such an institution have been submitted by the Turkish delegation and are being examined by the Governors of various banks of issue.

INGENIOUS METHOD

Used By Smugglers

Singapore, May 9.

The fact that a system of ingenious signals has been employed between smugglers and their lookout men on shore on the Changi Road coast, has rendered the task of Monopolies officers doubly difficult.

A party of revenue men waited in hiding practically all through Monday night but no arrests were made although eight sacks of tobacco were seized.

They, however, went back to the spot on Tuesday night and saw a boat approaching shore. Signals by means of lighted cigarettes were exchanged but the officers made no move.

They waited until the boat had reached and the contents of it carried into a neighbouring hut. This was promptly surrounded and two men were arrested. Cigarettes and Siamese and Javanese tobacco, on which the total duty was $500, were seized.

actively to the organisation of collective security in Europe.

Mr. Henderson welcomed the stress declaration of the British and Italian Governments as guarantors of the Locarno Treaty. That joint declaration could not but be helpful in building up the collective security of Europe.

Finally, Mr. Henderson declared that the Disarmament Conference must go on with its great task, and must be made productive of an effective convention.

LEAGUE AGENDA

Additional List Of Items

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Geneva, May 13.

A new Note from the Abyssinian Government has been received by the League Secretariat on Monday, the text of which, however, is not as yet published.

It is understood from well-informed circles, however, that the Abyssinian Government again draws the League's attention to certain new military measures on the part of Italy as well as the fact that the members of the Italian-Abyssinian Arbitration Committee are not yet appointed. At the same time, it is asserted, the Note once more requests the League Council to take up the dispute if the members of the Arbitration Committee have not been appointed before the next session on May 20.

The League Secretariat has now published an additional list of items for the agenda of the forthcoming session, among which is the Hungarian-Yugoslav dispute for which Lord Privy Seal Eden is rapporteur. The opinion prevails here that this question will be settled without great difficulty. It will, however, result in all the Little Entente Foreign Ministers being present at Geneva and there is no doubt advantage will be taken of this opportunity to hold preparatory conversations for the Danubian conference.

A number of questions concerning the Free City of Danzig have also been placed on the agenda and include the petitions by the Centre Party as well as by the proprietor of the paper "Danziger Volkstimme" which the Government recently prohibited for five months, also a memorandum from the High Commissioner of Danzig dealing with the duties incumbent on the League in Danzig according to the Danzig constitution and referring to the speech made by the Senate President, Greisler during the recent elections.

WORLD AND HER NEW DEALS

planned system of private enterprise and replace it by a planned economy. Planning in this sense involves first a choice of ends, and second a choice of means.

Many And Complex

When the ends have been chosen, and the means chosen, no departure from either is really possible. Some might think that the means could be revised as experience and expectancy indicated; but in a large modern state the means are so many and complex that it would take a superhuman intellect to keep touch with a continuously changing series of means, and at the same time preserve the aims and ends intact. Neither elasticity, nor adaptability can really be expected when you have a planned economy of this kind. It builds on past achievements of private enterprise; but it is very doubtful whether it leaves room for the application of initiative and ingenuity which have produced the modern apparatus of production. It involves also a terrible interference with liberty. Our system of Capitalism has been built on the freely expressed demands of consumers. In a planned economy consumers cannot be allowed to want something that is not there, or more of a commodity than is there.

The temperament of many people will notwithstanding our socialists, deter them from a full-bodied planned and controlled system of this kind. Most countries have preferred to retain a foundation of free enterprise, and to inject a greater or less amount of planning into the existing system. The symptoms which have called for action are chiefly, the great fall in prices, the disturbance of the balance between the prices of primary products and the prices of manufactured goods, the burden of indebtedness incurred at a time of high prices, and the huge ranks of the unemployed. In addition some nations have set about extending a control of the state over the actual functioning and conditions of industry, as in America.

The U.S. Policy

In proposing a vote of thanks to the speaker, Rotarian C. Champkin said Professor Robertson and he associated as they were in somewhat widely different spheres of economics, had one thing in common and that was that they had no enemies but were cordially disliked by all their friends. (laughter). He recalled that some fifteen years ago he was sent to the United States to study America's economic system and report particularly on the Federal Reserve System. About five years later he gave two addresses at the University of Hong Kong on the American Banking System, with particular reference to the Federal Reserve. He had then made rather a stirring prophecy that within seven years the United States would meet a bigger banking crisis than she had ever met before. He might have been a lucky prophet but that crisis did come about.

Continuing, Mr. Champkin said: "You cannot possibly solve economic problems by the wave of a wand or the stroke of a pen. In the course of the last 20 years we have found that we were perhaps mistaken in our old ideas of economics and experiments have been conducted which would have had a very hair-raising effect on the economists of 23 years ago. It is rather premature to suggest that the experiments being made in America are doomed to failure. We have heard it expressed on many sides that the policy of the United States is rather grotesque and immature. Some of the finest economists in the world are in America. I hope you will not judge what is being done in America for world recovery and the recovery of the United States by what you read in the news reports. You have in the United States Chambers of Commerce, the best brains of the Continent, and many other able men who know quite well what is wrong and the policy to be followed in putting it right."

I feel myself that although many things have happened which to me seem sheer heresy it does not follow that they are wrong. I do not know whether this policy of silver buying, whether this trend towards bimetalism is right or wrong, but we must judge it by logic of the event. In due time I think it highly probable that America will lead the world in recovery by scrapping many of the old principles, which many of the old members of this Club have been brought up to regard as sheer heresy."

LAWN BOWLS

Craigengower Pair Beaten

Good bowls was seen yesterday on the Club de Recreio, green when the first round of the open doubles competition between J. Fraser and A. Hyde-Lay and B. W. Bradbury and U. M. Omar was played and resulted in a victory for the former pair by 28 to 19 shots.

At one period of the game Omar and his partner were leading by 11 to 8 shots but 11 shots on three successive heads by the other pair turned the tide of the game.

Fraser was laying beautifully throughout and played good bowls consistently. He received good support from Hyde-Lay. Omar at the beginning was playing his usual sound game but dropped off as the game went on. Bradbury played inconsistent bowls.

BOXING AT PENANG

Weber's Great Win

Penang, May 4.
Last night's boxing in aid of the Penang Jubilee Fund produced a great number of thrills.

Weber gained a creditable victory over Dhammaraj, the holder of the featherweight championship, in a twelve round non-titular bout. Although Weber annexed eight rounds Dhammaraj did not let him have things his own way. Great credit reflects on the Indian who put up a thrilling battle against a man who was his superior in experience and had an advantage of over four pounds. His best rounds were the ninth, tenth, and eleventh when he fully extended Weber.

Excitement among the record crowd grew to fever pitch as both slogged away at each other. But for remarkable stamina Weber would have gone down under Dhammaraj's punching. Throughout the fight Weber gave an admirable display and it was obvious before the eighth round that Dhammaraj would have to win by the short route to prevent Weber winning.

Weber's Ringcraft
But what really beat Dhammaraj was Weber's ringcraft and anticipation. Dhammaraj was the slower of the two but made a keen and courageous attempt to come out the victor.

The junior flyweight championship resulted in a win for Speedy Pancho. Pancho, in spite of a cut over the eye sustained in the infighting in the third round and necessitating constant attention during the intervals, snatched a clear points verdict.

In the preliminaries Cheah Boon Cheng outpointed Sam McVee over four rounds. Young Sikl was beaten by Arjunan in a contest marked by heavy hitting. Tan Hong Choon beat Marie Blue in a return contest.

Cups to the winners and medals to the losers were presented by the Hon. Mr. Palgrave Simpson.

MANY HIGH SCORES

On Bilkdale Course

Southport, May 13.

The sandhills of the long and arduous Bilkdale golf course provided record high scoring in the first qualifying round in the Dunlop-Southport 21,600 Professional Golf Tournament to-day.

There were numerous scores of over 90.

Two assistants, Harrison of Little Hampton and Rhodes of Wentworth, led the field with 73 strokes, which is a new professional record for the reconstructed course.

A remarkable fact was that only nine of the 125 professionals engaged beat the scratch score of 76.

PAT ON THE BACK

Chiang Praises Yunnan

Yunnanfu, May 14.

The Generalissimo gave the Yunnanese a pat on the back this morning when, speaking at the weekly memorial service, he said that he had heard the people of Yunnan had not forgotten the four virtues of old China. This would materially assist development along new lines. Yunnan is blessed by good climate, soil and people. But they subsisted mainly on farming which is not sufficient to make China great. There must be immediate efforts for industrialisation which alone could place China in a position for the better welfare of her people and lay the foundations of strength such as enjoyed by other nations who developed their resources for the manufacture of their needs.

Addressing the gathering, His Excellency the Governor said:—
Sir Henry Pollock, Dr. Kotewall, Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen.—On behalf of my wife and myself I thank you all for your reception of us to-day and for the charming addresses which have just been presented to us. My departure in three days time will mark the end of a chapter in my life of which I shall carry very pleasant memories for such remaining years as are allotted to me. It is almost to a day five years since I arrived in the Colony. Those years have passed unbelievably quickly and this is largely due to the fact that they have been interesting and happy ones.

The address which was presented by Sir Henry Pollock gives a long account of what has been done in the Colony during those years but I am not so presumptuous as to claim the whole or even the greater part of the credit due. I owe an incalculable amount to my colleagues in which term I include all Government servants and to my unofficial advisers and to the community generally. Without the help and the co-operation which I have received it would have been impossible to carry out that programme. In the address presented to me on my arrival I was promised the loyal and unstinted support and co-operation of the whole community. I have had it in full measure and am deeply grateful. I have read in the History of Hong Kong that the Hong Kong public man is nothing if not severely critical and indeed in the early days there was ample evidence of criticism which often was far from kindly. I think that a kinder spirit is abroad to-day and that criticism is more helpful and friendly—as such I need hardly say that I have always welcomed it.

THE AIR MAP

While there has been a good deal of progress I naturally feel some disappointment in not having seen the completion of certain important works which are at present in hand. This however is inevitable. Among the works which have been carried out those which have given me most pleasure are to be reckoned:—Infant Welfare work, in respect of which much is due to my wife; the establishment of a Junior Technical School which I feel confident will prove of great value to the Colony; the further development of the Water Works; and the Urban Council Legislation which I trust will lead to an increased participation by the public in civic affairs.

I am glad that the new Queen Mary Hospital, the new Gaoi and the Central British School are well in hand though I greatly regret having to leave before they are finished. I also confess to considerable disappointment that I have not seen Hong Kong placed solidly on the air map before my departure. I have pressed the need for this and I can assure you that the Home Government are fully alive to the urgency of this service. Certain difficulties are being overcome and I am confident that in a very short time we shall see Hong Kong connected with England by air.

I have recently appointed a Housing Commission with a view to determining a definite policy in regard to overcrowding and I may repeat what I said in Council that I trust that the profit out of the City Development Scheme which is in hand may be devoted to such town improvements.

MUTUAL CONFIDENCE

Governors have been described as transient visitors but most of them leave some impression on the Colonies which they have administered. They cannot perhaps do much to create or destroy prosperity but they can help to take full advantage of such prosperity as may accrue or lessen the ill effects of periods of depression. In either case it is essential that they should consult and work in harmony with the public.

In the address presented to me on my arrival I received what I may call a fatherly hint that I should, through the channel of sympathy, encourage a spirit of goodwill and friendship and maintain personal contact with the community. I have always endeavoured to do this and I trust that I have achieved a small measure of success. I was not a young man at the time of my appointment but age affords some compensation, providing experience and a mellowed outlook and an appreciation of the wisdom of considering all points of view. The common aim of officials and un-officials alike should be the good of the Colony and it is essential that there should be mutual confidence. With the best will in the world however and even with the utmost co-operation it may happen that one can do little to help a situation which is mainly due to world causes. Hong Kong has passed through eventful years. The depression which was felt in other parts of the world was not felt here as early as it was in many places but when it did come it struck us with the force of a typhoon and there is no gainsaying the fact that the depression now lies heavy upon us. As may be seen from the report of the Economic Commission there would appear to be little that we can do locally except perhaps to make an effort to reduce the expenses of administration.

"INCURABLE OPTIMIST"

The Colony, after years of vicissitudes, had great prosperity due to stable conditions, the enterprise of British merchants, and the industry, loyalty and good citizenship of the Chinese. This prosperity, with a notable break due to outside influences nearly ten years ago, lasted for a considerable period.

To-day that prosperity shows signs of great deterioration. Though I confess to being an incurable optimist, I cannot but feel some doubt whether the Colony will ever again see those halcyon days but I feel confident that with an improved international situation, economic and political, Hong Kong will regain in a substantial measure its former prosperity. The success of the loan floated locally last year affords evidence of faith in the future of the Colony. I cannot however resist expressing the view that it would be far better if less speculation were indulged in and legitimate trading adhered to.

It is essential to maintain good relations with our neighbours and it has been a source of great satisfaction to me that such good relations have continued steadily during my term of office. The recent visit of His Excellency Mr. Lam Yin Koy, Chairman of the Kwangtung Government, afforded further evidence of this. There have been friendly exchanges of visits from time to time and I have recently made further suggestions for an extension of such visits, both official and unofficial, as I feel confident that from such intercourse both our neighbours and ourselves will grow to realize more and more that our interests are interdependent and that we can do much to assist one another.

I am glad to say that our friendly relations with our old allies in Macao have been maintained and I have twice visited that Colony and exchanged visits with the Governor. I feel confident that our friendship will long continue. I have been greatly touched by the address presented by the Chinese community but I feel that I little deserve the very kind remarks contained therein.

FRIENDSHIP WITH CHINESE

Though it is only five years since I came to Hong Kong I have been associated with Chinese for over thirty-seven and a half years and can look back to many friendships with them. From the time that I arrived in Malaya at the end of 1897 I was constantly in touch with them and was struck at once by their loyalty, good citizenship and honourable dealing. The race has contributed greatly to the prosperity of that country. I therefore came here with an already formed high opinion which has been maintained. I noticed at once how alive their leaders were to their responsibilities and how much they did for their fellows. The good which has been done and is still being done by the Tung Wah and allied Hospitals, the Chinese Public Dispensaries, and the Po Leung Kuk is too well known to call for more than a passing reference. In education they have done much. They have given generous support both in money and time to such important organizations as the Society for the Protection of Children, the St. John Ambulance Association, the Salvation Army and the Aberdeen Industrial School.

LOYAL BODY

In the District Watch Committee I have had a most loyal and useful body of advisers who, though they may not always have seen entirely eye to eye with the Government, have always given me the most loyal support. They have shown their confidence in Government and even where there was a measure of disagreement, have recognised that Government is working for what it regards as the greatest good of the people.

The Chinese have given in the past very generous and substantial support to the University but I should like to take this opportunity on the eve of my departure of making a further appeal in this direction.

We decided some time ago to establish a Chinese Department and are trying to carry this out although the finances of the University render it somewhat difficult. There is an endowment fund for this Department amounting to some $290,000. I should like to see my Chinese friends make that up to $500,000 so as to cover approximately the cost of the Department and so render its future free from anxiety.

I should like to take this opportunity of saying how delighted I was by the wonderful contribution of the Chinese Community to the recent Silver Jubilee celebrations. It has left an impression on my memory which will never be effaced. I wish to pay a tribute to the crowds on that occasion: they were a model of good behaviour and no one who saw them could fail to be impressed by this.

I wish that I had been able to do more for the poorer section of the community during my term of office. Some little, however, has been achieved in certain directions. In the New Territories further amenities have been provided and some progress has been made in improving the sanitation of the villages. A full enquiry was held into the question of improving agriculture and stock breeding in the Territories and as you know a useful report was submitted. I have now arranged for an expert in co-operation, who is at present advising the Government of China, to come here in about two months time and after enquiry give us the benefit of his advice with a view to introducing a system of Co-operative Societies in the Colony. I feel convinced that that is the best course to follow if the necessary improvements are to be effected.

The question of leprosy has been a difficult one but Government is at present in negotiation with an organization in the hope of making necessary provision for sufferers from this terrible disease, on the lines suggested by the recent Committee. I feel assured that in the future, as in the past, in all schemes of this nature and indeed generally, the Government of Hong Kong can rely on the loyal assistance and co-operation of its Chinese citizens.

LADY PEEL'S SHARE

I take this opportunity of thanking the other nationalities who reside in Hong Kong for their friendliness and help and for their uniform support of the Government.

On behalf of my wife I thank you for the tributes which you have paid to her. I need hardly say that she has been an invaluable helpmate to me and without her I should have found my task much more difficult. She has taken a great interest in various social services and appreciates all the help that she has received. Having regard to the great interest which she has taken in child welfare, an interest which is fully shared by myself, it has been a great delight to us both that a special fund has been started under my name to support the Society for the Protection of Children. I greatly appreciate the compliment. I can think of no more worthy object for help and I trust that the fund will prove a great success.

"HAPPIEST MEMORIES"

In conclusion I crave your indulgence in striking a more personal note. As I have stated I was not a young man when I came to Hong Kong and I may have doubted whether it would be easy for me to make fresh deep friendships at my time of life—I need have had no doubts. The community of Hong Kong met my wife and myself in the friendliest spirit and I can say with undoubted truth that we have both formed many close and dear friendships here. We are grateful for those friendships and shall treasure them for the rest of our lives.

On leaving Hong Kong on Friday we shall carry away the happiest memories of our time here and will always maintain the greatest interest in and the highest hope for the prosperity of the Colony and of you all. (Loud applause.)

Lady Peel was then presented with two beautiful bouquets by Miss Elsie Forster and Miss Kotewall.

This was followed by three hearty cheers and a "tiger" for

CHEAPER AIR TRAVEL

Reduction In Fares

Reductions in fares for passengers who fly by Imperial Airways from England to India, and points beyond, became operative with the departure of the India service from Croydon on April 2.

The reduced rates, as compared with previous charges, are indicated herewith:—

Route	New Fare	Old Fare
London-Karachi	£ 85	£ 95
London-Calcutta	108	122
London-Rangoon	120	135
London-Singapore	158	180

Proportionate reductions also became effective as between intermediate stages east of Gwadar. Between Delhi and Calcutta, for example, the fare was reduced from Rs. 230 to Rs. 200.

With the departure of the England-Australia service from Croydon on April 13 the complete route of approximately 12,000 miles, from London through to Brisbane, will, for the first time, become available for passengers as well as mails. Hitherto, during the initial phase of operation on the new sections between Singapore and Darwin, mails only have been carried on these stages, passengers from London not being booked farther eastward than Singapore.

From London through to Port Darwin, Australia, the passenger fare is £180, and from London to Brisbane £195, with reductions at the rate of twenty per cent. on return portion of tickets paid for in advance. In the reverse direction, and in Australian currency, the fares are: £244 from Brisbane to London and £225 from Port Darwin to London.

YESTERDAY'S CONCERT

A concert in aid of the Blind Girls' Home, was given at the Jacobean, Hong Kong Hotel, last evening by Madame Lottie Gordon when an excellent programme was presented.

The programme opened with the songs about Hong Kong, specially composed by Madame Gordon herself. "Echoes of the Peak" was very well rendered and the "Hong Kong Boats Song" which is to be published and translated into several languages shortly, was the pick of the evening, several Chinese young ladies joining in the chorus.

"Jack Tar's Dream of Home" was a very good interpretation of a sailor's life and among the others were a few pieces by famous Australian composers.

At the conclusion of two songs, sung by the whole gathering, Madame Gordon called for three cheers for His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel on their impending departure for home.

"PARIS IN SPRING"

When Paris in Spring comes this Paramount picture will give picture fans the pleasure of hearing Mary Ellis again, last seen in "All the King's Horses."

Mary Ellis, the star of the film, who is now in London, has that rare type of voice—the operatic soprano which can adapt itself equally well to light music.

Miss Ellis has had much opera experience and has sung with Caruso and Chaliapine, she has taken starring roles in musical comedy, and has worked through seasons of Eugene O'Neill plays. Paris in Spring is her first Hollywood film.

Supporting her in the picture, which is directed by Lewis Milestone, are Tullio Carminati and Ida Lupino.

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel.

CEREMONY AT QUEEN'S PIER

Guests arriving by car are respectfully informed that no cars will be permitted to drive up to Queen's Pier after 1.55 p.m.

The route of His Excellency will be lined by troops from Helena May Institute, Garden Road, Queen's Road, Jackson Road to Junction with Connaught Road. No traffic will be permitted on or across this route after 2.05 p.m.

Cars may be parked in Connaught Road (between Jackson and Murray Roads) and Chater Road.

No parking will be permitted in Jackson Road or Wardley Street north of the Statue.

CHOSEN BY THE KING

Jubilee Stamps

The King, I understand, personally made the final choice of design for the special Silver Jubilee issue of postage stamps, writes a correspondent. The King is an ardent philatelist.

Specimens of the stamps, which will be on sale throughout the country from May 7 to July 7, were privately shown yesterday. There will be a first printing of 1,000 million in four denominations:

- 4d. green;
- 1d. red;
- 1½d. brown, and
- 2½d. blue.

Mr. Barnett Freedman, the well-known artist, produced the design. The Post Office authorities asked for designs from several artists. Each received a fee, with a "special fee" for Mr. Freedman.

The stamps are oblong and twice the size of the ordinary issue. Markedly rich colouring is obtained by photogravure process. A new feature in stamp design is provided by striking contrasts of light and shade.

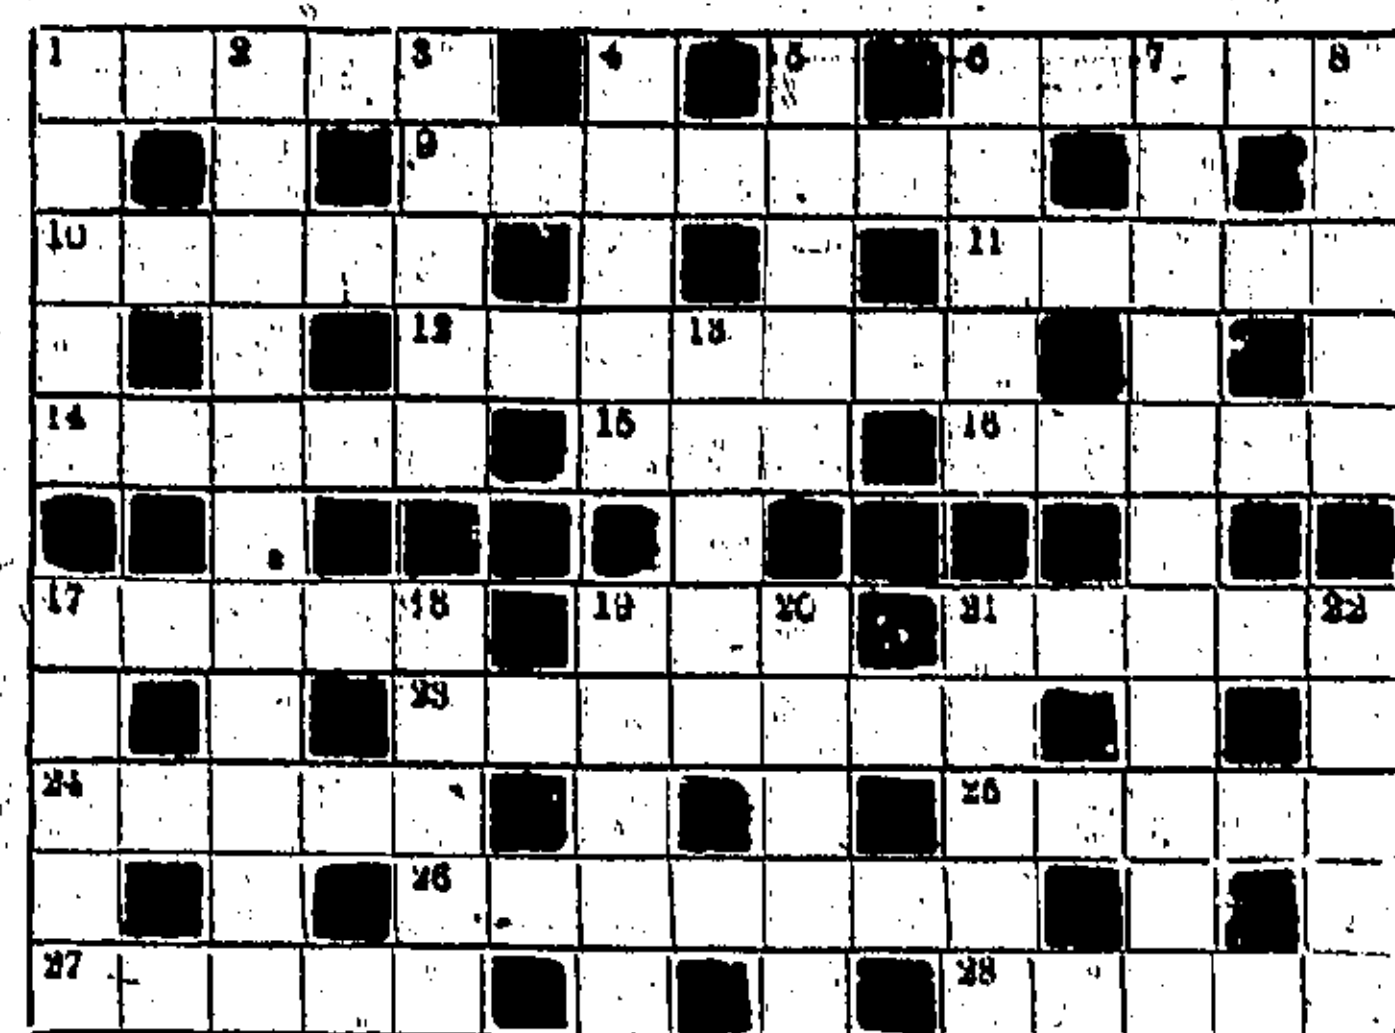

The size of the new stamps will mean a 100 per cent. increase for the G.P.O. on the cost of printing ink and paper. I am informed that the new issue will require an added expenditure of approximately £10,000.

From to-day the general public will be able to see the original design for the stamps on view at the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington.

The central feature on each stamp is the King's head, with laurel leaves "for Triumph and Reward," olive branches "for Peace and Goodwill," oak leaves and acorns, "for Strength and Stability."

The various designs were considered by a committee headed by the Director of the National Gallery.

THE IMPERIAL AIRWAYS

London, May 13.
In reply to a parliamentary question, it was stated on behalf of the Air Ministry that the subsidy to the Imperial Airways provided in air estimates for the current financial year amounted to £473,000, of which £120,000 was covered by contributions from the Dominion and Colonial Governments.

DISPUTE IN HOPEI

Sino-Japanese Mines

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")
Tientsin, May 7.

The Luikiang Coal Mining & Railway Company sent a telegram to the Hopei Provincial Government yesterday, saying that on May 4, about 30 armed Japanese soldiers and police from Shanhai-kuan and Chinwangtao, forcibly occupied and closed the coal-mines without warning or explanation. All the godowns as well as the wharves have been sealed. The Luikiang to Chinwangtao light railway, constructed by the Company to transport the coal to the harbour, has been torn up in places by the Japanese to prevent the trains from running. All the locomotives have been seized, so that communications have been entirely suspended.

The Luikiang Company, it may be pointed out, is a private concern, of which Mr. O. S. Liu, Managing-Director of the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company, is the principal shareholder. The Company has under its possession a mining area of 4,000 mow and is well-known for its production of anthracite coal. The mine premises are adjacent to the Sino-Japanese mines operated by the Tai Chi Coal Mining Company. When the Luikiang coal workers began unearthing a new mineral known as "black stone," along the border of the two properties, the Japanese manager of Tai Chi charged that the Chinese were infringing on the rights of the Japanese concern. After a month's dispute, the Japanese manager sought assistance from the Japanese police, who had the warehouses and wharves of the Luikiang Company at Chinwangtao sealed, and destroyed the private-operated railway of the Company between Chinwangtao and Luikiang.

The First Permit
According to investigations made by the Hopei Provincial Department of Reconstruction, the mining area at Heishih, occupying 1,000 mow, was defined in the permit (Hu-Chiao) of the then Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce in 1914 as bordering the Luikiang and Tai Chi Mines, and was recorded in the mining map of the Luikiang. But according to the permit issued by the Ministry in 1917 no statement was made concerning the border line, so the Japanese manager now claims that the mining area at Heishih belongs to the Sino-Japanese concern instead of the Luikiang Company.
